$6,000,000,000 Tax Cut Feasible In '48, Leaving $3,000,000,000 'Debt' Surplus, Economic Body Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Taxes could be cut $6,000,000,000 in 1948 and still leave a $3,000,000,000 surplus to reduce the national debt, the Committee for Economic Development declared Wednesday night. And a tax cut, the group said, was needed soon.

Such a pruning of revenues—half again as great as the income tax bills vetoed by President Truman last Spring—would allow for $4,000,000,000 in foreign aid next year, CED said, but should not be voted until Federal spending plans have jelled.

The Committee, an economic planning organization of businessmen, proposed that the Government adopt a "stabilizing budget policy" by fixing tax rates to produce an annual surplus of $3,000,000,000 under conditions of 96 percent employment.

"Having set these rates, leave them alone unless there is some major change in national policy or of national life," the CED report went on.

Such a program could provide substantial debt reduction in the 1950s, when war influences on the budget were ended, it suggested, but a partial step could be taken next year.

"It is important that careful plans for tax revision be made in the Congress as soon as possible," the report said. "The American economy needs a tax reduction in the near future."

The present system "discourages new and independent business and arrests the growth of established business;" therefore, said the Committee, it was "a threat to a free economy and a free society."

The 70-page statement was issued by CED Chairman Paul G. Hoffman, President of Studebaker Corporation. It was adopted unanimously by CED's 21-member Research and Policy Committee, which includes Beardsley Ruml, Chairman R. H. Macy & Company and author of the pay-as-you-go tax plan; Eric A. Johnston. President Motion Picture Producers' Association, and Chester C. Davis, President Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

For the 1950s a thorough "tax reform" was needed, the report said. It charted a drop in the individual income tax to a starting rate of 11.5 percent, instead of 19 percent; a standard corporation tax rate of 30 percent, instead of 38, and elimination of all excise taxes except on gasoline, tobacco and alcoholic beverages.

These and other steps would bring Federal revenues down to $33,000,000,000 as a peacetime objective, CED said, of which $3,000,000,000 would be surplus.

For 1948 a partial step could be taken, it said, by dropping the individual tax rate to 15.2 percent, wiping out the excise levies on transportation and communication, and making a start toward eventual elimination of the "double taxation" of corporate dividends; that is, the taxing of a corporation's earnings as well as the dividends paid to stockholders.

Other major features of CED's 1948 tax proposals include:

1. A lower scale of income tax rates, reaching 67.3 percent at $100,000 of taxable income (now 84.55 percent) and a top rate of 83 percent at $1,000,000 and over. This would cost the Treasury $3,000,000,000.

2. Granting to all married couples the privilege of dividing their income for tax purposes, as in the 13 community-property States; this would cost $750,000,000 of revenue.

3. Lengthening the period for which business losses may be carried forward and applied against future profits from two years to five; reduction of the carry-back from two years to one.

A long-range tax program should encourage risk-taking, investment and business expansion, CED said. Present high taxes dampened such incentives, it contended, noting that a man who had a $20,000 net income was not inclined to take a chance to earn another $1,000 because the Government got just over 50 percent of it—"he has become a minority partner in his own additional income." Investors, it said, tend to put their money in tax-exempt State and local Government bonds instead of industrial expansion.

Another High Court Rule Hits Local Law Legality

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Supreme Court of Georgia invalidated a local law Wednesday—and by so doing appeared to have raised grave question on the constitutionality of hundreds and perhaps thousands of similar acts throughout Georgia.

The High Court ruled unconstitutional an act of the 1943 Legislature allowing extra compensation for the Sheriff of Catoosa County, in extreme North Georgia. The act was made applicable to counties with a population of not less than 12,190 and not more than 12,210 in the census of 1940.

In a decision written by Associate Justice W. Y. Atkinson, the Court held that the act violated the Georgia Constitution by its limits. The act applied to Catoosa only.

Section 4, Article 1, of the Constitution says: "Laws of a general nature shall have uniform operation throughout the State, and no special law shall be enacted in any case for which provision has been made by an existing general law."

Thus, said the Court, since comlaw, any change for the benefit of one county is illegal. All Justices concurred except T. Grady Head, pensation of sheriffs is fixed by who was disqualified, and Lee B. Wyatt, who was absent.

It was not the first time the Court has ruled a local act unconstitutional by reason of conflict with general law, but Capitol sources said Wednesday's decision was the most direct expression on limitation by population brackets.

How many other acts would fall into this category was uncertain. A spokesman for the Secretary of State's office said thousands of local acts are on file, most of them limited by population brackets, but added no estimate was possible.

A qualified legal source, however, estimated that a vast number—possibly a majority of all local acts—undertook to alter general laws to meet local needs or preferences.

None of these acts would be directly affected by Wednesday's decision, since each would stand or fall on its own merits. None would become invalid—even if unconstitutional—until attacked in the courts, and then only after final adjudication by the Supreme Court.

More than 300 local acts, approved by the 1945, 1946 and 1947 sessions of the Legislature, already are under cloud as result of recent invalidation of a Butts County local law. The Court held that the final copy of the act, as filed with the Secretary of State, omitted proof of prior advertising in the County affected.

A petition for rehearing on the Supreme Court's decision is now pending.

City Body 'Eludes' Newsmen

Mayor Hartsfield and City Council's Police Committee Wednesday night played hide and seek with newsmen to hold an hour-long closed door discussion of a proposal to hire Negro policemen for Negro areas of Atlanta.

The mayor announced no decision was reached.

Following adjournment of the Committee session, at which Mrs. W. B. Sudderth led a delegation from the Atlanta Council of Church Women and the YWCA, to urge that Negro policemen be added to the police force, Committee members accepted an invitation from Hartsfield to "get a sandwich."

Accosted as they left the room from which reporters and Lt. Harry Brown, Committee Secretary, were barred, Council members refused to comment on the meeting.

Councilman Cecil Hester, Committee Chairman, and Ald. Ed A. Gilliam, another member were not present. When asked about what action was taken, Hartsfield said "none; all the committee was not present."

Chief Jenkins' plan to extend Piedmont Avenue across the Capitol lawn into Capitol Avenue became ensnarled in protocol and was sent to the City Planning Commission in order that the matter may be taken up officially with Gov. Thompson.

The action was taken after Mayor Hartsfield expressed regret that the proposal was announced in The Constitution before it had been broached to State officials. Approval of the Georgia Legislature would be mandatory before the improvement could be made.

Navy Abandons Missile Test Unit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(UP) The Navy said Wednesday that it was abandoning guided missile test facilities at Camp Davis, Holly Ridge, N. C., because of economy reasons. Tests will be discontinued there Nov. 14, but deactivating of the insctallation is expected to take several months.

PREDICT 34-36 LOW TONIGHT

Ready Reserve Blankets, 'Chilly' Few Days Seen

Those extra blankets will "feel good" for the next few nights and topcoats will be "in season" for the next few days.

That's the advice of the Weather Bureau. The boys who read the instruments promise Atlanta a low of from 34 to 36 tonight after the thermometer slid to a shivery 38 Wednesday night. A frost was also predicted for the city early today.

There is no "real cold" weather in sight, the forecaster asserts, just "chilly" for the next day or two. He refused to hazard a guess as to what kind of weather will follow the current chilly spell.

Although few Atlantans saw it, a "10 percent" eclipse of the sun occurred during the early afternoon Wednesday.

Phelps Denies Price Slaying In Unsworn Statement to Jury

Victim's Character Assailed

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Fred Phelps, 42, Avondale real estate owner on trial for the murder of Ella Victoria Price, took the stand in his own defense at the DeKalb County Courthouse in Decatur Wednesday night for a brief three minutes of unsworn statement.

His appearance seemed to disappoint the crowds in court, who apparently expected a startling turn of events.

Phelps said he did not kill Miss Price, that he did not see the gun in question for six months prior to the shooting, and he knew nothing about the events leading up to the incident.

His first knowledge of the slaying, he said, came when he heard a shot and went into her bedroom to see what had happened.

The trial, which took a sordid turn when defense attorneys attempted to show Miss Price was a homosexual, an alcoholic and a shoplifter, was continued until 9 a. m. today.

William Schley Howard, attorney for the prosecution, summarized the State's case.

Defense Counsel Young Fraser then told the jury there were other possibilities which might have led to Miss Price's death. In an attempt to tear down the State's summary, he mentioned suicide and shooting by another person.

The court was recessed until today, at which time the defense and prosecution will make their final presentations. The judge will then charge the jury, and the case will be in the jury's hands.

Earlier, Miss Price was pictured by Fraser as a person who lived a "wasted life." The defense introduced 11 character witnesses to testify Phelps was a man of "good character and reputation in the community."

A defense witness, Dr. T. E. McGeachy, Decatur physician, told the jury he had served in the Navy during the war and spent three months of his service with the Division of Psychiatry. There, he said, he treated 15 or 20 cases of homosexuals, and he declared that homosexuals and alchoholics were abnormal mentally and more inclined toward suicidal tendencies than normal persons.

Fraser asked Dr. McGeachy a direct question: "What would you say about the jealousy of one woman in love with another woman?"

The doctor answered: "I'd say she would be extremely jealous.' He further testified that a tendency toward suicide ran in families, but would not say it was a hereditary trait in toto.

J. W. Price, brother of the slain woman, who was subpoenaed by the State and hired Attys. Howard and Swift Tyler to aid the prosecution, was put on the stand by the defense in a surprise move. He was questioned about the death certificate of his father, but the testimony was stricken from the record.

Hilda Butler, roommate of Miss Price, was a star witness during the morning session.

When asked if Miss Price was an alcoholic, Miss Butler answered the defense attorney: "I'm not a doctor, Mr. Fraser." She admitted, however, that Miss Price had been a member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Miss Butler, a practical nurse, testified she had known Miss Price since the 1930s while serving as a nurse at Alto when Miss Price was a patient in the tuberculosis sanatorium there. Miss Price had lived five years in the Butler home at Waycross, the nurse said, and later

Purge of Pension Rolls Will Slash Waiting List

By M. L. ST. JOHN

If you are one of the 6,000 aged Georgians on the waiting list of the State Walfare Department's pension rolls, take heart, because the Welfare Board is planning to purge its rolls of persons not in need and make room for many actually in need.

Welfare Director L. C. Groves told the Board Wednesday that a study was being made toward strengthening the requirements on adding persons to the pension rolls. The Board ordered continuation of the study.

"Today we have some people receiving aid who own hundreds of dollars worth of property, or whose families are able to care for them," Groves said. "Meanwhile, many persons without property and without any means of support are on the waiting lists. Our policy should be changed so as to spend our available money on those persons in dire need."

Georgia has one of the largest pension rolls in the South, and Georgia taxpayers are spending more per capita to support the needy aged than most Southern States, Groves said. Because of the liberal requirements, for getting on the pension rolls and the large size of the rolls, the average pension paid to Georgia's needy is next to the lowest in the South.

Georgia has an average of 429 pensioners per 1,000 population over 65 years of age, while the Southern average is 300, Groves reported. The average Georgia taxpayer puts up $1.85 per year for pensioners, while the average Southerner contributes $1.41. The average Georgia pensioner receives $17.07 per month, while the average Southerner gets $18.22.

"If Georgia's old age recipient rate were reduced to the Southern average, Georgia's roll would drop from 76,864 to 53,790, and the same amount of State and County funds now being spent would produce an average pension of $24.39," Groves asserted.

To be eligible for an old age pension in Georgia, a person must be unable to support himself and must not have more than $300 cash. There are no restrictions on property ownership or ability of close relatives to support the pensioner.

Groves said the restrictions formerly were more rigid, but were liberalized during the war when there was less demand for relief. The waiting list, which at one time (1940) went to nearly 50,000, was cleared in 1943. With the close of the war, many aged who had been receiving allotments from relatives in the armed forces again became applicants for pensions.

Sam Rothberg On Hospital Authority

The Fulton County Commission, at a special meeting Wednesday, elected Sam Rothberg, Atlanta realtor, a member of the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority to succeed the late Walter Rich, and authorized architects to draw up new plans for a Courthouse annex to include jail facilities.

Sam Rothberg

Rothberg expressed deep appreciation for the honor. Long active in civic affairs, he came to Atlanta 30 years ago from Plainfield, N. J., where he was a member of the City Planning Commission. He married Miss Rita Frohsin, who died many years ago. He was associated with her father, J. Frohsin in a ready-to-wear business on Whitehall St. When his father-in-law retired a score of years ago, Rothberg entered the real estate business.

Past President of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Credit Association, Rothberg is also a member of the Optimist, Standard and Progressive Clubs and the Temple. He is also a Mason and an Elk. A son, Robert, now of Philadelphia, was a captain in the Air Force.

Mr. Rothberg is a graduate of the Woodrow Wilson College of Law and is a member of the Georgia Bar Association and the American Bar Association, although he confines himself to real estate activities.

The Commission authorized Toombs and Creighton and Barili and Humphreys, architects, to draw up new plans for a Courthouse Annex to include a jail and to cost $2,500,000. The Annex will be on Central Ave. in the rear of the Courthouse.

Sandy Springs Water Seen

Sandy Springs residents may get City water as a result of a conference Friday between Mayor Hartsfield, members of City Council's Water Committee and the Fulton County Commission.

For months a proposal to install a 16-inch seven-mile long water main to carry City water to the area has pended.

The new effort is designed to reopen the discussions and to attempt to arrive at a solution of the problem.

10-Month City Receipts $900,300 Over Estimate

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Your city government, Mr. and Mrs. Atlanta, is definitely in the black.

Figures in the office of City Compt. B. Graham West Wednesday showed that actual collections through Oct. 1947, had amounted to $15,267,467, a total which is $950,300 more than the $14,317,167 anticipated when the budget was prepared last January.

On the basis of collections thus far, the municipality probably will have a cash carry over for 1947 exceeding $2,000,000.

And the Atlanta school system also has struck pay dirt. Through September it had been paid $4,568,520, a figure only $39,632 short of the $4,608,152 which it expected to receive for the entire year. October figures have not yet been ably will end the year with a ably wil lend the year with a $300,000 nest egg.

Five major revenue-producing departments of the city accounted for $12,599,747 of the $15,267,467 collected for the first 10 months of the year.

Taxes produced more than half the 1947 collections with a total of $7,618,278 up to Nov. 1.

The four other divisions listed collections for the same period as follows:

Water, $2,435,430; licenses, including business licenses, liquor, beer and wine taxes and the percentage-sales tax on beer and wine, $1,639,149; Recorders' Court fines and costs, $756,863; Parks, including cyclorama; golf and swimming pool receipts, $149,927.

The cash reserve brought over from 1946 into 1947 was $1,692,526, but the 1947 figure will exceed that by a comfortable margin if revenues continues to hold for the remaining two months of the year.

Mayor Hartsfield and other administration leaders have stressed the importance of carrying over a cash reserve from one year to another so that municipal operations and payrolls may be met until taxes become due in May, without the necessity of borrowing. The city has not been forced to borrow for many years since it has operated on a cash basis by accumulating a year-by-year surplus.

Mississippian Released by Yugo Troops

TRIESTE, Nov. 12—(UP)—United States Army authorities announced Wednesday night that Sgt. Duel Farrell, 21, Starkville, Miss., who was seized by Yugoslav troops Tuesday, while fishing southeast of Gorizia, was turned over to Italian officials in Gorizia late Wednesday.

Farrell returned to his unit and reported that he had been treated well by the Yugoslavs. He said he was questioned briefly and then held under guard at San Pietro, a small Yugoslav town.

The Army protested Farrell's arrest and demanded his return. His was the first border arrest since three American soldiers were seized at gunpoint and taken into Yugoslavia in September. The three were returned unharmed several days later.

LOST: BEARINGS, WALLET, CAR, FREEDOM

Fence-Post Salesman Subscribes To 'All's Well That Ends...' Idea

Joe Phillips, a fence-post salesman of Alpharetta, is convinced that all's well that ends well—even if it does entail a tedious process.

Joe was on his way to Chattanooga Wednesday after a wild night during which he lost his bearings, his wallet, his automobile and his freedom—temporarily, that is.

The post salesman, with the assistance of Atlanta Patrolmen R. B. Moore and R. F. Guy, recovered all of his lost property except $15 which the City Recorder's Court retained, as penalty for a minor infraction of the city's laws. Phillips, the officers said, was fined that amount for being "drunk on the streets."

Joe's bad night—the one he wishes was a dream—began when he left Conyers en route to Chattanooga. Shortly after leaving Conyers he picked up a couple of Marines. From then on he "can't remember."

Police filled in the rest of the story. According to the officers, Joe arrived in Atlanta early in the morning and let the Marines out at Capitol and Georgia Avenues. He then went one block farther to Crew Street, where he stopped.

Police found him there several hours later and arrested him on suspicion, thinking he had stolen the car. They also charged him with "being drunk on the street." Trying to identify himself, he then discovered his wallet, containing $111, was missing.

After a frantic search and thorough investigation, the officers found his wallet at the corner of Capitol and Georgia Avenues, where the Marines were let out—all the money was there.

The only thing that disturbed Joe was his faulty navigation. "I thought this was Chattanooga," he told the Atlanta policemen.

Shanghai Experts Study Aid Program

SHANGHAI, Nov. 12—(AP)—Business and financial experts in Shanghai said Wednesday the proposed $300,000,000 U. S. aid-to-China program would rescue this nation from threatened bankruptcy but would be totally inadequate for bolstering war-battered communications and industries.

These persons said the proposed assistance would wipe out China's foreign exchange deficit—expected to reach $190,000,000 for the fiscal year—permit importation of urgently needed food, cotton, fertilizer and petroleum.

The Government would like to have money to develop capital projects, including, in order of importance, communications, electric power, fertilizer plants and heavy and light industry.

MAN-EATERS APPEASED

Shipwrecked Men Throw Comrade's Body to Sharks

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 12—(UP)—The lone survivor of a ship sinking said Wednesday night that the body of a comrade was tossed to a pack of sharks to appease the man-eaters which dogged his life-raft while he drifted helplessly for two days.

Denton C. Ebanks, 26, of West Bay, Grand Cayman Island, B.W.I., and three other men took to the raft after the Motorship Louise J. foundered in a storm. One—whose body was tossed to the sharks—died on the raft and the other two deserted the raft for a piece of driftwood. They were seen no more.

From his hospital bed here where he is recovering from severe sunburn and exposure, Ebanks, 26, gave the first details of the last voyage of the Louise J. on which he was engineer and first mate.

A five-man crew boarded the ship at Miami Saturday evening for the trip to Havana, Cuba.

The 64-ton freighter was loaded with heavy machinery which began to slide about the decks when the vessel ran into a storm Sunday night.

First a crane went overboard, Ebanks said, then a heavy tractor broke loose smashing a hole in the ship and crushing the only life boat.

When the ship began to sink about 10 p. m., Ebanks said, Capt. Randolph Bodden, of Grand Cayman Island, ordered the crew to abandon ship and jumped overboard himself.

"I think he was hit by some of the machinery," Ebanks said. "We never saw him again."

Ebanks and the three remaining men identified as Seamen Rene A. Sabatela, 25, and Carlos Caballero, and a cook, "Juan," fashioned a raft from a ladder and a ship's hatch.

At daylight Monday, they noticed the sharks following them.

"The sharks didn't go away until after Juan died and we put his body into the sea," Ebanks related.

The cook had been "out of his head" Monday night, the seaman said, and died about noon Tuesday.

Each of the three remaining men said a prayer to himself for the dead man as they carefully saved his life preserver and slipped his body into the sea.

Several hours later, the raft began breaking up and the Cuban seamen attached themselves to a log which drifted by. Ebanks stayed with the remains of the raft where he was found and picked up about 20 miles southwest of Key West Tuesday night by the Liberty ship, Oliver Loving.

Petrillo Pleads Innocent To 'Surplus' Labor Charge

CHICAGO, Nov. 12—(UP)—James C. Petrillo, czar of the Musicians' Union, pleaded innocent Wednesday to a Federal charge that he tried to force a radio station to hire unnecessary employees.

Then he listened proudly while his attorney described him as "the savior of musical culture" in the United States."

"Without Mr. Petrillo and his battle, the nation would become clatter-happy," the attorney said.

Petrillo, President of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL), pleaded innocent before Federal Judge Walter J. Labuy to a charge that he violated the Lea Act by calling a strike May 28, 1946, against Chicago Radio Station WAAF. The Act makes it a crime to force, or attempt to force, a radio station to employ more workers than it needs.

After court, Petrillo, dapper in gray and excellent humor, held a news conference in which he:

1. Announced that representatives of union locals in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago would meet next Wednesday at New York with officials of the three major networks to discuss terms of contracts expiring Jan. 31.

2. Elaborated on the Union's demand that 300 standby musicians be hired for the radio program "Information Please." The program is broadcast over 300 stations. The Union demanded a standby musician for each station when the program's producer wanted to have a pianist on the show.

The producer, Don Golenpaul, filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board in New York Monday protesting the demand.

Northeast Flailed, Glazed

BOSTON, Nov. 12—(UP)—A northeast snow storm with hurricane gusts raged in New England Wednesday night, causing at least one death as it snarled traffic, disrupted communications and glazed highways with ice.

Only reported fatality was 6-year-old Thomas Clancy, of Pawtucket, R. I., who was struck and killed by a skidding automobile on a street near his home.

From a high of 51 degrees at noon Wednesday, the temperature had dropped to 33 and was expected to fall well below freezing.

VET FAMILY MOVES INTO 'NEAT' HOME, GIFT OF CONTRACTOR, LABOR UNION

OMAHA, Nov. 12—(AP)—The Lewis Etherington family moved Wednesday from its leaky Army tent to the frame house built free of charge by an Omaha contractor and an Omaha labor union.

"Neat," commented Herb Etherington, 14, as he and the other three children explored the structure. Workmen still were installing plumbing and painting the interior.

There was no ceremony, but gratitude shone in Mrs. Etherington's face as she was handed the keys. Her husband is in a Lincoln, Neb., veterans' hospital convalescing from a shrapnel injury.

Truman To Carry Plea To Convening Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—President Truman will open the special session of Congress next Monday with a personal appeal for the two things he wants Congress to do—give immediate aid to Furope and check rising prices in the United States. The speech will be broadcast from 1:30 to 2 p. m. EST.

The President's decision to deliver his message in person to a joint session was announced as he conferred with representatives of industry, labor and agriculture on methods of producing enough to make European aid feasible.

Sec. of Commerce Harriman told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the Government's proposal to send $597,000,000 in goods to France, Italy and Austria this Winter could be carried out without undue strain on the country's economy.

Harriman, who headed a 19-member committee appointed by the President to study America's ability to help Europe, added, however, that sending the contemplated amount of nitrogen fertilizer would create a "special problem" because of high domsetic consumption.

Meanwhile Sec. of State Marshall, under questioning by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said the Government expects "about 70 percent efficiency" in the use of the $300,000,000 to be proposed for aiding China over a 15-month period.

He did not immediately explain why there could not be complete efficiency.

Marshall said he doubted that the on-the-spot report on China prepared by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer would be published in full, although parts of it might be made public.

"I don't think it is to the best interest of the Chinese Government or our Government to release it," the Secretary said, adding that in international affairs "you can't spread everything on the table."

Asked by Rep. Fulton, Republican, Pennsylvania, if he wanted Congress to grant aid to China without having seen the report, Marshall replied: "I think so."

Both Marshall and Harriman were testifying on behalf of the State Department's "stop-gap" aid to Western Europe proposal, which Marshall described as "an option on time to consider whether a long-range program is acceptable to the Congress and to the people."

Marshall said nearly 1,000 U. S. military officers were helping the Chinese government fight Communist forces and that the American Government also had authorized an additional training center to help China in Formosa.

But on the question of further relief, he said: "What can be done unless the Chinese Government does a great deal herself? And a great deal has to be done there before we can do more here."

Marshall discussed China with obvious reluctance, saying at one point: "I don't wish to get into a criticism of the Chinese Government at this hearing." Chairman Eaton, Republican, New Jersey, immediately switched the questioning to other topics.

Rep. Vorys, Republican, Ohio, suggested during the hearing that "stop-gap" aid to Europe be provided by amending a law passed last Summer to give $350,000,000 in relief to half-a-dozen countries.

Sen. Taft, Republican, Ohio, avowed candidate for his party's presidential nomination, and several other Senators have spoken in favor of cutting Marshall's European aid figures. Taft plans to press his point of view in the Senate Republican Policy Committee on Friday.

Columbus Students Demonstrate in Street

COLUMBUS, Nov. 12—(AP)—Some 200 Jordan High School students demonstrating in the street in protest against the discharge of the school's Assistant Athletic Director, disbanded temporarily Wednesday to permit passage of a parade honoring the return of the city's war dead.

Bodies of five war heroes were returned Wednesday and the students dispersed as soon as crowds began gathering for a parade honoring the heroes.

Previously the students had hauled down an effigy of W. H. Shaw, Superintendent of City Schools, at the request of Chief of Police John G. Newberry. The effigy had been strung from a tree with a placard reading: "Shaw's New Position." Trees bore red-painted placards reading "We Want Register."

B. F. Register, Assistant Athletic Director and a mathematics teacher for 21 years, was fired by the City School Board last week for alleged insubordination. Several hundred students held a mass meeting Tuesday morning in protest against the discharge, and remained away from classes.

RICHLY ATTIRED, SANDWICH LADEN

Phelps Trial Throng Sets Air Of Roman Holiday Celebration

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

It was a vociferous throng that came, laden with sandwiches and homemade cake, to witness the murder trial of Fred W. Phelps in DeKalb Superior courtroom at Decatur Wednesday.

Predominantly feminine, the spectators were richly attired, far-sighted enough to bring their lunches and tenacious enough to hang onto their chairs against all comers.

"Young lady," one elderly, handsomely hatted lady said inperiously to a passing reporter, "are you in a hurry? How about sitting here and holding my place for me while I go to the bathroom?"

Other elderly ladies who apparently had known him since his early childhood chided Sol. Gen. Roy Leathers roundly for allowing the 10-foot-high plywood replica of the death chamber to remain up, blocking their view of the proceedings. "Roy," cried one spectator, during a brief recess, "if you don't get that thing taken down I'm not going to vote for you!"

The graying Solicitor General apologized plaintively. "Do you think we want it up?" he inquired. "We tried to get it taken down the day they put it up—but the court ruled otherwise."

Weary from three days of sitting in the corridor or being subjected to the rapier-like questions of attorneys on both sides, plump, blue-eyed Hilda Butler, roommate of the slain woman, was determined to stick out the trial although she felt she was not wanted by either side.

The State subpoenaed the undergraduate nurse, technically making her their witness. But as the trial progressed, State attorneys did not call her; and when the State finally rested, Miss Butler still had not made a courtroom appearance. The defense then called her, over State objections, and she was actually subjected to cross-examination from both sides—the State because she was placed on the stand by the defense, and the defense because attorneys considered her "a hostile witness."

"I don't know what it's all coming to," sighed Miss Butler, "but I would have come to this trial even if nobody had subpoenaed me. It just looks to me like they're not trying Fred—they're trying Vickie."

The famous "little black book" which has created such a stir during the trial with its melancholy verses attributed by the defense to a suicide-minded Miss Price, in reality probably contains pretty good poetry written by a recognized American poet.

W. P. Ward, Douglas railroad man, wanted it clearly understood that the poems which he identified as being in his wife's handwriting were not original with her.

"She likes poetry," Ward explained, "but she didn't write that. She found the verses in a volume while we were visiting up in North Carolina one Summer many years ago, and she copied them down.

"I think the poet was Sara Teasdale."

But by now the publicity-shy Mr. Ward is wishing, and expects his wife is wishing, she had never heard of the late Miss Teasdale or her heart-wringing lyrics.

Between them, the 11 character witnesses summoned to the stand to vouch for Fred Phelps delved into theology, psychology and pathology.

All of them, in answer to questions from Defense Atty. Murphy Candler, declared they had known Phelps for periods ranging from 10 to 30 years, and knew his reputation and character to be good.

But some of them backed down a little on cross-examination by Leathers and Schley Howard, assisting with the prosecution.

Suppose you knew a man you thought to be of good character who had been drinking whiskey for six or eight weeks, hadn't been sober for more than a day or two, and was there in his house with an unmarried woman, his wife out of town, drinking all weekend?" they would ask. "Suppose this young woman was there in her night dress and the two of them were there alone and this man kept giving this young woman drinks . . . would you say he was of good character?" the prosecution attorneys asked.

Inevitably the witnesses said they didn't "know" that to be true; but when pressed to pretend it was a fact and give their opinion, some of them faltered.

"Just suppose," the attorneys admonished Dr. Carl Pickett, Decatur dentist. "I can't suppose," declared the dentist.

Dr. C. L. Allgood expressed the opinion that character wouldn't be destroyed by such circumstances because "it won't drown what's in a man."

"I've taken liquor home on Saturday night and although I haven't gone as far as you say, I don't think it would hurt a man's character," said Walter Parris, Decatur insurance man. "It might hurt his health and his standing at home, but leaving the woman out . . .

"I want the woman in!" declared Prosecutor Howard.

"Then I'd say the man deserved the public's pity," said Parris.

Snite Miami-Bound In His Iron Lung

Fred Snite, Jr., Well-known polio victim, passed through Atlanta Wednesday in his iron lung on his way to spend the winter in Miami Beach.

With Snite in their private Pullman car were his wife and father, three daughters, three nurses, a nurse for the children and a male attendant.

PHELPS

they had lived together on Fourteenth Street and Peachtree in Atlanta, until Miss Butler was married to a man named W. H. Crawford, a marriage which ended after three years.

"Did you leave Mr. Crawford on account of Miss Price?" defense counsel asked.

"I did not!" Miss Butler declared, her eyes flashing.

Miss Butler said she and Miss Price had rented a room in the Phelps home, where the slaying took place, in answer to an advertisement for a congenial couple. They paid $125 rent monthly, she said.

Two Jacksonville, Fla., policemen testified, and one of them, B. W. Rowe, said he arrested Miss Price at a motor court there in May, 1945, when he said Miss Price was intoxicated and was charged with disorderly conduct and fighting. Rowe testified that Miss Price admitted to him at that time she was a homosexual.

Judge Luther Z. Rosser, for 31 years judge of the Civil Court of Fulton County, also testified that Miss Price had made a similar admission to him. So did V. D. Young, of the Merchants' Protective Association.

The 11 character witnesses introduced by the defense said they knew Phelps as a man of good character and reputation. When cross-examined by the defense, their answers ranged from humorous to philosophical.

They were Ben Burgess, Clerk of the Superior Court of DeKalb County; C. C. Dennison, Avondale filling station operator; Dr. C. L. Algood, physician; Douglas McCurdy, Stone Mountain policeman; Clifford Morgan, dry cleaning plant operator; Dave Chesnut, Chamblee contractor; A. P. Milam, contractor; Dr. Carl Pickett, Decatur dentist; Walter Parris, insurance man; Tilly Davis and Harvey Chesnut, of Chamblee.

VERSE STIRS HOWARD

'Black Book' Reading Brings Lawyers' Clash

Poetry-lovers among spectators at the Phelps trial received a little lagniappe Wednesday, when rotund, balding Defense Counsel Young Fraser put on his bifocals to read from the melancholy "little black book" admitted into testimony over heated protest of the State.

Originally said to have been the work of the slain Victoria Price, the volume was identified in DeKalb Superior Court as belonging instead to Mrs. W. P. Ward, Jr., of Douglas.

Fraser insisted, however, on regaling the Court with verse entitled "Too Proud for Tears," beginning:

"At least I have love; although much went wrong,
This was good, this was strong . .
To your lips I bring song,
To your hunger, bread."

Reaction of Atty. William Schley Howard, assisting in the prosecution, to Fraser's recital, provoked an argument between opposing lawyers. Howard breathed softly, "That's beautiful!" and was reprimanded for "not addressing his remarks to the Court so they could be heard by all."

Lot Group Gets Permission To Withdraw Parking Law

The Atlanta Auto Parking Improvement Association Wednesday night was granted permission by the Police Committee of Council to withdraw a proposed new ordinance regulating parking lots and parking garages.

The Parking Association, requested that the ordinance be withheld pending an intensive advertising campaign designed to create a public demand for the measure.

J. P. Hunter, Secretary of the organization, said plans for such a campaign now are under way.

The ordinance would require that an applicant be a resident of the City for a period of two years before the date on which the application is filed.

The Committee also:

1. Instructed Jenkins to notify seven veteran members of the police department who will be 65 years old or older by Dec. 31 to file for pensions. A City Charter amendment passed in 1946 makes retirement mandatory at 65. Those affected are Asst. Chief A. J. Holcombe, Y. T. Allen, J. M. Austin, Lt. John H. Davis, R. L. Hollingsworth, W. D. McGee, and J. E. Patterson.

2. Asked City Atty. Jack C. Savage to prepare an ordinance requiring that all operators be required to place an attendant trained in first-aid on ambulances answering emergency calls.

3. Deferred action on a proposal to require all dealers in second hand automobiles to file daily with the Police Department a description of all cars purchased together with a description of the seller.

4. Refused to recommend the transfer of the Little Five Points Liquor store from its present location at 441 Seminole Ave., N. E. to 449 Seminole, N. E., after a large delegation of citizens objected.

Reuther Side Sweeps Four

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 12—(AP)—The triumphant Walter Reuther forces in the CIO United Auto Workers tumbled tobacco-chewing R. J. Thomas and mild-mannered Dick Leonard out of their Vice Presidential jobs Wednesday.

Completing the Reuther sweep of four top union offices, the UAW convention turned Leonard's post over to Regional Director John W. Livingston of St. Louis.

A few hours earlier Thomas was beaten by Dick Gosser, powerful Toledo, Ohio, labor leader.

The election stampede got off to a flying start Tuesday when Reuther was re-elected President without organized opposition and Emil Mazey defeated Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes.

The gentlemen of the Eighteenth Century who first enjoyed White Horse Scotch judged it the acme of perfection. . . . . . . Succeeding generations, however, have added to the skill and secrets inherited from father to son—have created an ever finer Scotch, down thru the years.

Today, in most gracious surroundings amid gentlemen of impeccable tastes—as always, it's WHITE HORSE of course!

DALLAS, TEX., JAIL RENTS LODGINGS

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 12—(AP)—Two transients asked Police Desk Sgt. L. O. Jones for lodgings in the Dallas Jail.

"Costs money to run this jail," Jones said discouragingly. "I'll have to charge you."

"How much?" one of the men asked.

"Ten dollars."

"How long do we get to stay?"

"Three days."

"We'll take it," said the weary wanderers and handed the sergeant 10 dollars.

Japanese Workers Demand Wage Hike

TOKYO, Nov. 12 — (AP) — Thousands of Japanese unionists paraded in downtown Tokyo and before the Diet building Wednesday in support of demands for wage increases for Government workers.

Many of the marchers were members of the Communications and Railway Workers Unions. Some participants sang the Communist "Internationale" and many followed standardbearers waving Red flags.

Kyodo News Agency estimated 150,000 took part, but police said the permit issued for the demonstration stated 30,000 would participate.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Controls Beget Controls

Many in this country won't be certain whether to applaud or decry the move of Britain's Labor Government to increase production by conscripting idlers and all those engaged in "non-essential" industries.

For Britain needs to gain greater production volume. And she needs also to convince Washington that she is doing all she can to help herself. The Harriman report emphasized, and Congressional leaders agree, that self-help is of primary consideration in granting funds for European recovery.

But in this country, conscription of labor for any purpose short of total war is viewed with horror by everyone from the CIO to Wall Street moguls.

And while Britain's political business is her own, there is serious question as to whether conscription is not just the addition of another story on her already top-heavy governmental structure. And whether the direction of labor will not require a disproportionate number of extra workers for enforcement.

We in this country, however, can look and learn. For this latest decree is merely an intensification of the controls under which Britons have been struggling since the Socialists came into power a little more than two years ago. And it serves again to remind us that there seldom is such a thing as a little government control over economic life; that one control leads to another until, in the end, the every-day lives of citizens are bound and gagged by edicts through which the rulers seek vainly the omniscient answer to all problems.

The Revitalized National Guard

Adj. Gen. Alpha Fowler's revelation that the Georgia National Guard is near its prewar strength affords a reassuring note. Recruiting campaigns in other states reportedly are not faring so well, but the fact that the Georgia Guard has doubled in strength since the current drive on enlistments started less than a month ago is indication that the youth of this State is aware of the opportunities which the Guard has to offer. New units are being located throughout the State as the projected expansion continues. Progressive communities currently without one would do well to investigate the possibility of obtaining a Guard unit.

Macon Loses an Exceptional Mayor

Macon has a new mayor today, Charles L. Bowden having stepped down last night after 10 years at the city's helm. A country boy who became Macon's police chief at 22, Bowden studied law at night and went on to become a business success before he turned his attention to politics. When he took office in 1937, there was $5,000 in the municipal treasury and the city owed approximately $2,000,000. Today it doesn't owe a dime and has a sizable surplus on hand for improvements. That is chiefly attributable to Charlie Bowden's good management, just as Macon's growth during the war years was largely due to his good salesmanship and faculty for making friends. Charlie Bowden is the kind of man who makes a success of anything he undertakes. Macon may count itself fortunate that Charlie Bowden came its way. Government everywhere needs more men of his outlook and ability.

They Can, Too, Agree

The United Nations agreement to partition Palestine and set up independent Jewish and Arab States not later than next July 1 involved a great many concession by both the United States and Russia.

Indeed, many observers counted the plan more notable for this readiness of two great powers to reconcile their differences than the actual accomplishment of the task at hand.

The United States originally had insisted upon setting up independent States immediately upon withdrawal of British troops Jan. 1. Soviet Russia wanted an interim period of six months between withdrawal and complete autonomy. There were other points of dispute, but this was the biggest.

The Constitution considered the Soviet plan to have considerable merit.

Under the compromise, however, a very satisfactory arrangement has been completed whereby British troops will evacuate by May 1 and complete independence will follow not later than July 1. A UN Commission, responsible to the Security Council, will assist Britain until the evacuation and then be responsible for order until the day of independence. Britain will provide security and essential public services until her troops have gone home.

If the plan can be put into effect peacably, despite the frantic opposition of the Arabs, it will be a feather in the United Nations' cap. For Palestine has been an international sore spot for at least 30 years. The world will breath a sigh of relief when orderly, responsible governments take the place of a mandate that never could operate successfully.

And it will be evidence, too, that there are international problems upon which Soviet Russia and the United States can forget their differences for the common good.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Too Many for One

Editor Constitution: We note that the representatives of business, industry and agriculture peered into the barrel of inflation and again discovered the ugly visage of organized labor. Evidently there was not enough liquid in the barrel to reflect an image of organized business and co-operative agriculture.

Business organizes. Industry organizes. Agriculture co-operates (sometimes). Why deny labor the same right? Why accuse one group of inflation responsibility? Are we not all guilty of encouraging today's high prices? Why do these gentlemen (who insist on persecuting labor, both organized and otherwise), not tell us the actual cause of outrageous prices and at the same time specify the cure, instead of attempting to throw out a smoke screen and then shout that labor is behind the screen and responsible for all the country's ills? We have so many ills, I refuse to believe that labor is powerful enough to have caused them all.

No Sales Tax

Editor Constitution: I have been in a State that has a sales tax, and I have never heard one native of that State brag that he or she loved the sales tax. It is three percent, but if you buy a 17-cent article you pay one cent tax.

Another State I have been in has a three percent sales tax, but if you purchase a 10-cent item you pay one cent tax or 10 percent instead of three percent. The sales tax works more of a hardship on the people least able to pay it. I suggest Georgia should try to avoid it. Once on the books as law, they are never repealed.

Rome

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned.

Filthy Zoo

Editor Constitution: A lot of fuss and criticism has been raised about our zoo and its keepers. It is smelly, it is filthy, it is a disgrace to our City. The cry has been going loud and wide. Even cruelty to the animals has been charged by others. Have these amateurish critics forgotten that, after all, the animals there housed are wild and treated fairly well?

If these crying critics would go around the City, and take a look at some chicken, rabbit and pig pens, I am sure that they would notice and observe a lot more of smell and dirt, comparable with our zoo. Remember that even in the best kept stables in the City, you don't smell gardenias, Stop crying, and if you want to help the animals, don't pass the bucket around full of kind words, but do it with money.

No Shooting Yet

Editor Constitution: In answer to the Rev. L. D. Ashler's letter, I have never heard of a Georgia Power Company gun-toting boy shooting the passengers. And I don't think I ever will. If the preachers of Atlanta would devote a part of their time in the pulpit to abolishing beer, wine and liquor, they would fare far better than trying to rap the man who is trying to protect himself and his fellow workers.

A READER,

Local Bills

Editor Constitution: Much discussion has arisen over the Supreme Court's decision in the Butts County case, in which they held the local bill was invalid because there was no proof of advertising prior to the bill's introduction.

It is my information that the Butts County bill was not advertised before it was introduced. If the bill was not advertised as provided by the Constitution, the bill should not have been passed and the Supreme Court did right in holding the bill invalid.

In my opinion, all other bills that were legally advertised, introduced and passed by the General Assembly are valid and should not be held invalid because the enrolling committees failed to make copies of the advertisements.

W. O. STRICKLAND.

Like Noah

Editor Constitution: Would like to add my "amen" to two of Mr. Pegler's articles, "the Commies are on the run" and "they are developing a new kind of racket."

To my way of thinking, Mr. Pegler is hitting the nail exactly where Noah did—on the head. That old saying "a hit dog usually hollows" is the reason for so much opposition to Mr. Pegler pulling down the cover, revealing some strange bedfellows? Also, wish to add "amen" twice for the letter of Rev. I. J. Domas, Minister, "Royalist Mouthpiece." He, like Mr. Pegler is hitting the nail on the head; and it is my hope and prayer that he and others of like knowledge conviction and courage, will drive that nail to a low, counter-sunk position, filling the hole over the nailhead with truth, as he did herein.

What Makes Alcoholics That Way?

This is going to be another piece about alcoholics. If you say that makes two in a row on that subject, and the fellow must be worried about it, you would be exactly right. I am suffering from a nervous hang-over on it—not a hang-over from drinking, but I have what they call the "dry jitters."

A couple of persons have gone out on the booze tide—fellows whom I knew well enough to be acquainted with their own inner workings. It seems wrong they are dead. Also, I know some others who are on the stuff and who hide it around the house just like the guy in the book, and the movie, "Lost Weekend." Their folks are worried sick, because they know that when a person gets on the stuff there isn't anything that can be done until the one involved quits lying to himself, or herself, and quits. Then there is help that can be given in staying quit. Quitting is the easiest part of it. Staying quit is sometimes hard. The best way to stay quit according to the evidence, is to go away from where it is . . . to quit hiding it, and to hunt up the company of someone who doesn't drink when the urge is on. The drunk doesn't enjoy being drunk and once dry for long enough to feel, and be, normal, enjoys just being alive.

Steps But, until someone wants to quit and quits, there isn't any helping. One of the best stories in our trade concerns a newspaperman who quit and stayed quit when the doctor told him he'd die if he didn't quit. A fellow worker was mourning in a hang-over one morning, and said, "I don't see why they praise Bill so much. He only quit once. I must have quit a thousand times."

Wanting to quit, and staying quit are the two steps. And not always easy ones.

I got interested a long time ago in seeing some really great persons struggling in the grip of the stuff, and I got curious about the why of it. Lately, I've been all the more agitated to study the subject. You don't like to see good persons die and not be curious about it.

Two Men In my time I have had only two men come clean with me. Both were alcoholics. One is dead. The other still is an alcoholic. Once he stayed off the stuff for a full year. Then he went back. It has got to be remembered that an alcoholic is always an alcoholic. He, or she, can never drink like those who can, and do, control it.

Alcoholics Anonymous, that miracle-like organization, which can work no miracles, but which seems to, has no quarrel with persons who do drink. It does not seek to bring about prohibition because it knows that an alcoholic will drink something, or anything—hair tonic, canned heat, rubbing alcohol. The alcoholic says it is fine for those who can, if they like it, but the alcoholic says, "I can't."

Reasons Both these men told me essentially the same story. It was the reason they drank.

"I am just scared all the time," said one. "I am scared that maybe they don't like my work. I imagine I can hear them talking about me, saying I'm slipping. I am just afraid all the time, of nothing in particular, but afraid. When I get sober I can tell everyone is looking at me with contempt or pity, saying, 'Too bad about him. And he has such a nice wife, too.' Or, I'm sure they are thinking what a no-good bum I am and why don't I jump out the window. Whiskey has got to be the little room I can go to where no one bothers me. I just go to a hotel room and drink and sleep."

The other one was almost the same type. He would feel that he wasn't considered as an important person, or wasn't popular. He also had those fears that ate at his stomach nerves and only a drink would relax. He also felt that his friends were deserting him and that no one cared anything about him. He would become in moments of remorse, almost like an unreasonable, whimpering child. This one is dead by his own hand. Yet he was really a fine person, with an excellent mind. He was warm and human and kind.

The Pity Now, obviously, these persons are not having fun, nor are they sinners. I don't see them as treading the primrose path.

The pitiful part of it is, there is absolutely nothing one can do for them until they themselves allow it. And not always will they do it.

And the more pitiful part of it is that so far, society has prescribed the jail, work camps, and has treated the alcoholic as a bum who didn't deserve any better. Many of them are very fine persons, worth saving.

At any rate, the problem is worth more than the medieval treatment we now give it and its victims. Not many will be saved. There will be more tragic deaths and suicides, because only a few of them will ever admit to themselves they can't go on, and who will quit and ask for help. But, we can try to help them.

Real Bloodhounds Are Mild Creatures

You read, presumably, the news stories about that Canadian who came to Atlanta for the purpose of buying a couple of "bloodhounds." He had read these animals were used in Georgia to track runaway criminals and had conceived the idea they would be useful in his country to track down lost children and others strayed away in the forests. Humane purpose, you see.

When he came here, however, and talked with men who really know dogs, he found out the truth about the breed, the bloodhound. Found out that, while he might possess a highly expert nose, the true bloodhound lacks stamina and tenacity, so that he really isn't very effective as a tracker on a long trail. He was advised, and wisely followed the advice, to buy instead a couple of crossbred hounds, half Red Bone and half July hound. Shipped a pair of such pups to Canada and we hope they prove competent in following the trail of lost persons there. Upholding, as it were, the good name of a Georgia product.

But the revelation of the weakness of the real bloodhound awoke some old memories.

"Tom Shows" Of all theatrical productions the one with longest and most persistent audience appeal, in the North, that is, is the entertainment known as a "Tom Show." I imagine there are "Tom Show" troupes still making the smaller towns in the North and East. Not so many years ago there were dozens of such troupes every season.

They put on a highly melodramatic, and laughingly crude, play based upon Harriet Beecher Stowe's romanticized story of Negroes called Uncle Tom's Cabin. In addition to the "thrilling drama," the performance usually included a number of vaudeville acts given by the members of the cast between acts. It had elements of the old-time minstrel show, in fact.

Characters in the melodrama always included Little Eva, Topsy, the wicked Simon Legree and his whip, Marks the lawyer, etc., etc., Eliza and the bloodhounds.

Those bloodhounds. If you never saw a "Tom Show" let me tell you about the big dogs.

Over the Ice You probably know, even though you never read the book or saw the show, that one of the big scenes is that where Eliza, the mulatto, carrying her baby, tries to escape over the Ohio River. It is early Spring and the ice on the river is supposed to be breaking up. Eliza crosses the river by leaping from one floating cake of ice to another, pursued by bloodhounds.

The stage scene was, of course, very, very crude. Eliza flees, offstage. The evil Legree and his hirelings follow, chasing them. And two or three great, ferocious looking dogs go loping across stage, supposedly in pursuit. What a thrill!

The truth was, invariably, the dogs used in the show were not bloodhounds. Not even like them. They used big mastiffs or Great Danes.

Bloodhounds, you see, are too small, too harmless in appearance. There wouldn't be much thrill for an audience to see a couple of the little, floppy-eared bloodhounds go sniffing across the stage. Whereas the big mastiffs looked as though they could bite off a good chunk of arm or leg at one snap of their jaws. They looked really frightening.

The Parade It was customary for a Tom Show troupe to give a street parade, advertising the performance, before curtain time. And the dogs, obviously, were an important item of the parade.

Wearing heavy, brass-spiked collars, with a man ostentatiously hanging on to the chains or leashes that held them, they were awe-inspiring sights for the unsophisticated. Good draws for the box office.

I saw a Tom Show once, just for curiosity. Too tawdry to lure a second time. But some people in that part of the country attended year after year.

When I was a very young boy there was a picture, in some book or other, of a runaway Negro slave trapped by dogs in a swamp. Those dogs of the picture, too, were mastiffs.

And I was quite a few years old before I learned that a mastiff is not a bloodhound. At that, a mastiff is a quite friendly sort of animal himself.

BILLY ROSE

Just An Old Habit

"Would you be interested in acquiring an unusual timepiece?" asked Maj. Timothy Morgan. "A great deal of blood has been shed over it."

I looked at the battered watch the self-commissioned Major handed me. It was an old dollar Ingersoll.

"What are you asking for this object d'art?" I inquired.

"The customary 20 tiny dollars," beamed the old confidence man.

"What makes it worth the extra nineteen?"

"The scene is Gilhooley's Bar and Grill on Ninth Avenue," he declared. "The time—a few minutes before midnight. Into the bar comes a giant of a man. He orders a double whiskey and tosses it down neat. As the giant turns to leave, the man who is standing next to him at the bar yells his pocket has been picked and accuses the newcomer. Before you can say 'Mulligan's Aromatic Acrobatic Itching Soap,' a brawl starts up. The gent who claims he was robbed and a dozen of his friends gang up on the giant. What ensues is reminiscent of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. The giant picks up his attackers two at a time, knocks their heads together and stacks the bodies in a corner like kindling wood."

"DID YOU see this yourself?" I asked the Major.

"From a vantage point under a table," said Morgan. "When the giant left Gilhooley's, I left with him. He interested me. He was the only tall pickpocket I had encountered in an experience embracing 40 years and five continents."

"How did you know he was a pickpocket?"

The Major looked hurt. "That's like asking Einstein whether Dr. Conant is a good physicist," he said with dignity.

"As we passed Madison Square Garden, I suddenly realized I had the key to Fort Knox in my hand. The way the giant had mandled his 13 attackers stamped him as championship fight material.

"A MONTH later I got my boy his first fight. His opponent was an old warrior named Bicks who hadn't won a bout since Carnera was champ. I bet our end of the purse — fifteen dollars — on the giant, who I had named 'Ignorant Eddie Burke' so as to confuse his opponents.

"On the night of the fight, I was in Ignorant Eddie's corner. My boy started piling up points right from the opening bell. At the end of the first round, Old Man Bicks had trouble finding his corner. At the beginning of the second, my boy produced considerable claret with a sharp right to Bicks' schnoz. It was only a question of time now. Bicks fell into a clinch.

"The referee stepped in to separate the men. When they parted, I yelled for my boy to finish it up. But instead of using his talented right, the giant kept pawing at his opponent with his left. He seemed afraid to use the other hand. I figured maybe he had hurt his right in the infighting. It only took Old Man Bicks a few seconds to figure the same way. He started throwing leather at my boy. Instead of facing up to him, Ignorant Eddie kept backing away, trying to cover up with his left. Two swings later, my boy was on the canvass. We carted him off to the dressing room and laid him out on the table. His right hand was still closed. I pried open the fingers gently in order not to do further damage the hand. At this moment, he came to, and when he did, he received his second knockout of the evening."

"You don't mean to say you belted the poor boy," I dead-panned.

"Poor boy, indeed!" bristled the Major. "In Ignorant Eddie's right hand was the referee's Ingersoll which he had lifted at the beginning of the second round."

Get There Early, It Won't Last Long

Joe Louis has signed to defend his title next month in Madison Square Garden.

The challenger's name is Jersey Joe Walcott and before the evening is over, he'll wish he'd stayed there.

The bout is advertised for fifteen rounds or less. It'll probably be the latter.

Louis disposes of challengers faster than they can bat an eye. The gong for the opening round is a signal at the Garden to put in a call for the next-of-kin.

That's why the networks aren't anxious to broadcast the coming bout. They know it'll be over before they're halfway through the initial commercial.

Thoughtfully, the match has been set for December 5. Thus there's a good chance that Walcott will be back with his family by Christmas.

STEWART ALSOP

Will Price Controls Come Back?

WASHINGTON—President Harry S. Truman must sometimes feel a little like the unhappy apple sorter whose job drove him insane because he had to make so many decisions. For in this Autumn of decision, still another decision—and this one is loaded with political dynamite—is now confronting the worried President. Sometime before next Monday, when the special session of Congress meets, he must decide whether to risk congressional wrath by asking for a kind of cut-rate OPA, or whether to propose much milder medicine and hope for the best.

When the President called the Congress into special session, he spoke firmly of the urgent need for effective measures to head off the threat of uncontrolled inflation. Yet the fact is that neither the President nor his advisers knew then what measures he would propose in his opening message to Congress. And although innumerable conferences have since been held, innumerable memoranda written, they still do not know. With the Monday deadline looming close, the conference-holding and memoranda-writing is now reaching a somewhat feverish crescendo. Yet, as of this writing, nothing like a final decision has been taken.

Agreement An area of agreement has been reached. But a larger and more vital area of disagreement still exists.

Those chiefly concerned are the White House aides, like Clark Clifford and John Steelman, the members of Dr. Edwin Nourse's Council of Economic Advisers, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug, Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman, and their advisers and economists.

Almost all those concerned with the price issue are convinced that the whole intricate paraphernalia of price control on everything from diapers to piccolos, on the old OPA pattern, is dead beyond resurrection. There is also general agreement that allocation and export controls, plus credit controls, are essential. But here the area or agreement ends. For a number of the experts insist that if the job is to be done, and a really disastrous inflation at home is to be avoided, some limited form of price control is urgently essential. It is argued that if the prices of a few basic commodities—food, especially wheat and meat, and basic industrial products, especially steel—are frozen, the whole economy can be brought into balance.

Objections The lines have not hardened, but the chief opponents of this school of thought are reported to be Agriculture Secretary Clinton Anderson and Presidential Aide John Steelman. They have received some ammunition from the reports of two of the ablest officials of the dead and gone OPA, James Brownlee and Henry Hart, whom Sec. Harriman has brought back to Washington to study the practical possibilities of reviving limited price control. For it is argued that the record of OPA clearly demonstrated that the national economy can no more stay a little bit price controlled than the lady in the joke could stay a little bit pregnant. One controlled price inevitably leads to another.

The proponents of price control argue, however, that the OPA parallel is misleading. They point out that during the war years half the national economy was devoted to war production, whereas now 90 percent is producing goods for civilian use. Thus limited price control measured in a few basic segments of the economy can check the threatening inflation. But if these measures are not taken, the pressure will continue to mount ominously, augmented by the failure of the Winter wheat crop and a new round of wage demands to catch up with the mounting cost of living. This, the price controllers argue, might spell real disaster, both at home and abroad.

Hazard These, too briefly, are the economic arguments. There are also political arguments. On the one hand, it is asserted that if the President proposed any form of price control, however limited, to the Eightieth Congress, he would be smartly slapped down. Moreover, this slapping process might crack wide open the carefully constructed bipartisan foreign policy structure.

On the other hand, the price controllers argue that the Congress cannot afford to disregard the angry mutterings of the housewives. If the Republican Congress refused to go along with a price control program, the albatross of responsibility for the galloping inflation which would surely ensue could be firmly fixed around the Republican Party's neck. Moreover, unless inflation is controlled, the whole program of aid to Europe might as well be written off anyway.

Obviously, the decision must rest in the end with the President himself. It is as important, and as difficult, a decision as he has been called upon to make. His message to Congress next Monday will show how he has decided. But it will be months before it will be possible to know for certain whether he has decided wisely.

"The average factory pay is now $49 per week compared to the 1939 average of $23.86, but its purchasing power, in 1939 dollars, is only $26."
—Financial news item.

Come, let us be gay for tomorrow we may
Be so rich there will be little pleasure
In toiling away for the few dollars' pay
We can add to our limited treasure.

The once-humble clerk who rode with us to work
Or the laborer riding beside us,
Will be richer by far than the big movie-star
Or the fabled old fellow called Midas.

We will have huge amounts in fifteen bank accounts,
And we'll throw some financial benders,
Our trousers will sag with the weight of the swag
As they strain on our silken suspenders.

Then we will be rich as the gaudiest witch,
And the Revenue people will sue us,
And all that we've got will go back in the pot
And it's darn little good it will do us!

CHANNING COPE

Awaiting A Great Event

Well, it looks like we will have enough to do this week. There's the Farm Bureau meeting, and there's kudzu hay to get in, and vetch seed to broadcast, and serecea seed to harvest. The fescue land needs some reseeding in parts due to being sown in the wind, and also is awaiting a dose of nitrate of soda due this week.

We are to put our new hammer mill to work on kudzu hay for the purpose of mixing a feed with kudzu meal, the sweet potatoes ought to be harvested and the fences enclosing our Winter pastures need tightening and renewing in places. And so on and on.

BUT THE main thing this week has to do with our lovely little female Scottie, Madame Middlemount Mischief. She is scheduled to have a new family on or about Friday. To readers with children or grandchildren of their own it may sound a bit absurd for grownups to show so much interest in such events, but with us at Yellow River, there is nothing of much greater importance. Our Missy is a very important part of our family and all eyes and all hearts are focused on her with great interest and fond hopes.

We could use some youngsters around the farm at this time. Most of us are pretty well settled in our ways and as such need the refreshing influence of a brood of puppies to lighten the load and bring out the smile.

Susie is a long way from being young and being without child or grandchild derives a great pleasure from seeing after Jock and Missy. She will take on new life when the youngsters arrive. Will prides himself on his mellow age and he needs juicing up by contact with youth.

BROTHER PARR is new at the business of raising Scotties, but he is keen about them and is intrigued with the idea of having some little ones abaut. The Bosticks like all puppies, and have a sort of proprietory interest in those who live here.

The prospective father, Champion Middlemount Picador, of Dunedin, Fla., is reported to have looked very bored when informed of his approaching parenthood. But he is the only one. The rest of us are walking on air.

Dividends In Support

WASHINGTON—President Truman's slow and cautious build-up of the European recovery program, ERP, manifestly is paying dividends in the public support and bipartisan political backing that now seems to be accumulating. The President drew considerable criticism from some quarters for not making haste faster, since it was so clear some time ago something substantial had to be done by us. That is, if we wanted to save in Western Europe the sort of civilization that we not only want to see there, but which is essential to the future security of our own democracy.

On the side of mechanics that criticism was valid. For our aid perhaps will cost us more because it was not planned and put into effect earlier, say, closer to the time when Secretary of State Marshall suggested it last June. Because of that failure, stop-gap aid for France, Italy and Austria now is an emergency rush order, as the Secretary emphasized to the joint session of House and Senate committees charged with matters of foreign policy.

BUT DECISIONS of a democracy are necessarily slow, though, once they are reached, they are sure, as our war experience proved. And this is the most momentous decision our people have had to make since lend-lease was inaugurated, after a similar gradual build-up by President Roosevelt, to throw our weight behind the democracies of Europe.

Furthermore, President Truman was confronted by a new sort of "isolationism" that was beginning to appear here and there, and which still requires vigilance. Accordingly, he proceeded by the necessarily slow committee approach to search out the facts to lay before the people.

The committees, including the so-called Krug Committee delegated to determine if our economy could stand the strain of the contemplated aid, and the so-called Harriman Committee charged with assessing the amount of aid needed and methods of distributing it, were broadly representative of all elements of our economy and society. They have reported on the adequacy of our resources to do the job and on what aid is required and how it can be given. The mass of detailed evidence is the groundwork for our policy.

THE PRESIDENT also gave time for numerous congressional committees, composed of both parties, to study the facts for themselves in Europe, and their evidence is now in to have its weight directly with Congress.

Education on issues in a Democracy requires the continuous white light of publicity, something missing often in the past in the field of foreign policy. Therefore it is most fortunate that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee have decided to hold open sessions for cross-examination of State Department officials on every phase of the ERP, so the public can be fully informed. In this important decision was seen the influence of Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman, who made the announcement in Secretary Marshall's presence.

It is encouraging also that the Harriman Committee refused flatly to countenance an approach advocated recently—and by some influential persons—that, as a condition to our aid, we should require that further socialization be stopped in the participating nations. Such a condition is much resented, and is highly obstructive since in most of the Western European nations involved it is the Social Democrats who are our best friends and the chief bulwarks against Communism.

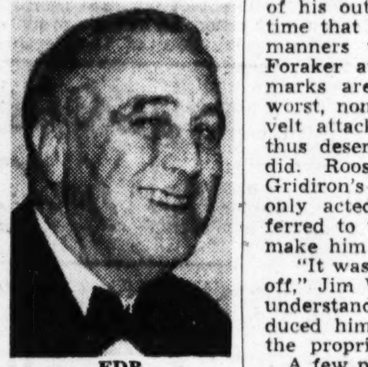
While the Harriman Committee insisted, as did Secretary Marshall, that the participating nations should take steps to stabilize their currencies and to eliminate trade barriers among themselves as a condition to our help, its report said:

"While this Committee firmly believes that the American system of free enterprise is the best method of obtaining high productivity, it does not believe that any foreign-aid program should be used as a means of requiring other countries to adopt it. The imposition of any such conditions would constitute an unwarranted interference with the internal affairs of friendly nations."

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Did Roosevelt Give the World Away?

NEW YORK—Various accounts of historic proceedings at Teheran and Yalta strongly suggest that vodka, wine and bourbon were influential in decisions which have been oala mities to Christianity and Western civilization. But, although it is freely related that Stalin drank vodka bottoms up and that Churchill stood manfully to his brandy, we have no honest statement of Franklin D. Roosevelt's p's and q's. Elliott speaks of his father's drams in a way to leave Pop sober, and this may be the fact of it. But whether Roosevelt lushed or honestly turned down his glass when Elliott was seeing things through a mist of champagne bubbles is a question on which any good examiner would press the witness for an answer. If Churchill emptied a bottle of brandy, what was Roosevelt drinking and how much of it? And how do we know that the stuff which Stalin tossed off was not water when we remember that the late Heywood Broun used to boast that the colorless liquid in the pitcher on the lectern when he was preaching his message to mankind was not ice water but gin?



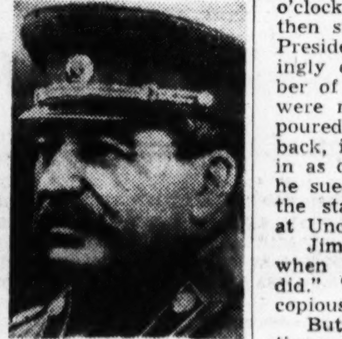
FDR

These were roaring, hairy-chested giants boasting of their capacities. Roosevelt always yearned to ride in the smoker amongst the men.

It is unlikely that he stuck to harmless crocks.

Churchill is one of those rare old soaks whose judgment improves with picklement and we might wish that our fellow had followed the same taste. If Roosevelt wasn't drunk, he might as well have been, for he couldn't have done us worse.

Discussion of alcohol as a problem of the most nearly royal family we ever had in our Presidential palace took me some time ago to the case of our first visitation, Theodore. He was brother to the amiable rummy who was father to our own Eleanor the great. Whether better or worse, politics was different in Theodore's reign, for this matter was a personal delicacy which in any campaign waged under the ethics and customs of the Democratic National Committee in the time of the New Deal would have been broadcast as a taint of the blood.



Josef Stalin

Yet the brother's unhappiness wasn't mentioned then, even though Theodore dared to make a legal issue of his own sobriety. It remained for Eleanor herself to set down for the historians, in her first book of memoirs, the unqualified statement that her father was a souse.

In the face of Theodore's dog-fall victory and his six-cent libel verdict against an obscure publisher who had, in general terms, called him a stew, I still believe he was neither as dry as his idolators believe nor as bibulous as his brother. It was easy for a man of Theodore's intimidating reputation to make the defendant admit that he had been guilty of an overstatement. But the issue was not whether Roosevelt drank, but whether he was a drunkard. The verdict has been cleverly construed to mean that he was almost a total abstainer and never had been known to get tight.

He was not an abstainer and he sometimes did pick up a load. This might explain some of his outrageous conduct as, for example, the time that he violated hospitality, precedent and manners to make a public brawl with Sen. Foraker at the Gridiron dinner, where the remarks are supposed to be non-political or, at worst, non-controversial and confidential. Roosevelt attacked Foraker, a fellow guest. Foraker thus deserved and got his chance to reply and did. Roosevelt thus made news and broke the Gridiron's traditional privacy. Roosevelt not only acted the fool and the boor but he referred to the Negro race in a word that would make him a Fascist today.

"It was the worst performance he ever pulled off," Jim Watson wrote in 1936. "I never could understand what induced him to smash all the proprieties."

Winston Churchill

A few pages later, Mr. Watson, a Hoosier Senator and a Republican landmark, described Roosevelt as "an occasional drinker." Jim often lunched and dined with him. Sometimes Roosevelt took a drink, other times he refused.

But he certainly did get tight occasionally.

On Joe Cannon's seventieth birthday there was a big celebration and Jim recalls that a big fund was raised for the party, of which it was said that $100 was wasted for food."

"The feast was sumptuous, every kind of liquor flowed freely and everybody had a bully time. President Roosevelt came in about 11 o'clock. He asked for champagne. Each man then stepped up, filled his glass and asked the President to have one with him, which he obligingly did. As there were a considerable number of gentlemen and as a couple of them who were not overly fond of Roosevelt consistently poured whiskey into his champagne behind his back, it was not long before the President was in as convivial spirits as any of the rest. When he sued a Michigan publisher, he did admit on the stand having taken "something to drink" at Uncle Joe's birthday party.

Jim recalled one other occasion, but only one, when Roosevelt drank "more than he usually did." This was a dinner and Roosevelt "quaffed copious drafts of champagne."

But Jim quotes him as having said another time: "I'll drink whatever I want to, whenever I want to drink it, up to the point of being incapable to take care of the business of being President. It is my own affair up to that point. Beyond that it would be the affair of the people."

But the party concerned never is an objective judge and many a red-eyed wreck has told the judge in the morning that all he had was a couple of beers at the corner.

Franklin Roosevelt gave away a world to Stalin in meetings described as orgies. The witnesses do not try to absolve him of getting drunk among so many tosspots. They just evade the subject.

HAROLD L. ICKES

Cash That Could Be Put to Better Use

To my regret I have lived to see the day when feminine fashions require me to bid a wistful farewell to women's legs. This dismal prospect is shocking to my sensibilities. It just goes to prove once again that death and taxes are the only things that we can be sure of in this uncertain life. I can remember, without any desire that they should recur, when women did not have "legs" and even the refined designation "limbs" was used very sparingly in polite society.

One delicate young woman of my boyhood acquaintance used blushingly to inquire of the butcher if he had a "limb of lamb." In that long-ago era, trim ankles "peeped" below the hems of gowns, when skirts were not sweeping the ground, and thick cotton stockings provided adequate, if uninteresting, protection against the weather.

If I had thought of the matter at all in the days of my youth, I would have regretted what now seems to me to be the prudery of voluminous and manifold skirts, just as I deplore the "new look" of today. Liberal though I am, I cannot bring myself to view women's retrogression in dress to the approximate styles of their grandmothers with anything but a lack-lustre eye.

THERE ARE, of course, serious economic considerations connected with the new and fulsome styles that one sees today. Bovee says somewhere that "there would not be so much harm in the giddy following the fashions, if the wise could always set them." A large number of husbands will applaud his sentiments. Actually, whoever thought up the idea of lengthening women's skirts should be held responsible for a loss to the Nation of many millions of dollars at the time when we need them for a more worthy objective. Of course, it takes only simple reasoning to appreciate that, when the length of skirts are increased, the length of coats must fellow. The same lengthening is required in what used to be generally characterized as unmentionables, but which are now publicly advertised as slips.

According to the 1940 census, there are approximately 65,607,000 women of all ages in the United States. Estimating that 19,000,000 of these are under the age of 14, and therefore unconcerned in any large degree by new styles, we arrive at the conclusion that 46,607,000 women in the country are quite definitely affected.

Let us further assume that only one in three of these women, or 15,523,000, is interested sufficiently to discard her last year's dresses and coats. Where does this leave us?

Obviously, in order to arrive at an estimate of how much additional material these American women are going to need in order to be in style, it would be necessary to multiply the number of stylish women by the number of extra yards required in their new 1947 wardrobes. The out-of-pocket expense, either to the husbands or the women themselves, is arrived at by again multiplying—this time by dollars.

ANY HARDY husband who wishes to try his hand at the problem can do so at his own risk. All that I shall say by way of supplemental detail is that one of Washington's swank couturiers has given me to understand that street-length dresses are down an average of three inches from what they were a scant six months ago. Cocktail dresses are a la mode at from three inches below the old length down to the ankle bone. The only rule for these last creations is that they be becoming or bizarre, or both.

In figuring out how much his wife's new wardrobe will cost, the husband must also give due consideration to the fact that dresses today are definitely on the full side. The skirts that one sees on the street flare, flounce, whirl, and cascade. Any one of these adjectives when translated is synonymous with money. Those costumes that do not fly out in fullness seem to be pleated, wrapped, or draped. Each of these styles takes cloth that could go to clothe the millions of destitute women of Europe or Asia.

It costs dollars also to pad hips, whittle down waistlines and round out shoulders. It might be well for our stylists and the women who slavishly follow their dictates to give this aspect of the situation a little consideration. I merely mention this en passant. My theme is skirts, not the Marshall Plan.

Hollywood 'Bites' Radio With FM-AM Dentistry

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12—(UP)—Inside his clenched jaw, MacDonald Carey related with horror today, is a secret that might well snuff out the radio set business.

MacDonald can receive radio programs via the filling in his teeth.

This horrible phenomenon has long been known to the dental industry.

We happened to be hurrying through the Paramount sound stage where "Hazard" was being shot when Mac leaped from his dressing room and grabbed us by the arm.

"Listen," he shouted, "do you hear anything?"

We heard only Paulette Goddard droning her lines across the stage.

"Thank God," he said hoarsely, "I've got a radio inside my mouth. I'm so afraid it will start up during a scene." He looked well. And he couldn't be fibbing because there wasn't a press agent in sight.

The poor fellow led us inside his dressing room.

"I went to the dentist Monday, see, and got a silver amalgam filling in my upper jaw and gold inlay in the lower jaw," he began.

"Then my wife, Betty, picked me up and we drove out Sunset Boulevard to look at our new house. We'd just passed the Beverly Hills Hotel when we heard a news commentator. He was talking about the Howard Hughes hearing.

"The car radio wasn't on. There wasn't an airplane above us. No other cars or even houses around us.

"My jaws were about an inch apart," Mr. Carey continued. "I felt a slight tingling in my mouth. The program kept up, a little out of tune but loud enough for both of us to hear it, while we drove about 13 blocks.

"Then it stopped. We turned around and drove back down the Boulevard but we couldn't pick up the program again."

He did later, he added miserably. In the middle of the night. His jaw began to send out an all-night disc jockey's patter. When he rolled over, the music stopped.

"I called my dentist in the morning and he explained it was the fillings. The minute I get a day off I'm going to have different ones put in," he concluded savagely.

In a daze we checked with Mac's dentist.

"Yes, it's true," Dr. Alvin Pasette said sadly. "Dissimilar metals have opposite electrical charges. So when silver and gold fillings are near each other, they form poles of a battery that generates current.

"The saliva in your mouth, if it's acid, acts as a conductor, like the sulphuric acid in your car battery."

DELIGHTS AUDIENCE

Galla Rini Atlanta Concert

Galla Rini, accordion virtuose, delighted a large audience in the Atlanta Woman's Club Auditorium Wednesday night with a versatile selection from some of the world's great music. By its increasing applause, the audience expressed its appreciation of the technique and the tonal effects which Galla Rini produced from his instrument in concert.

"I chose the accordion because it is a complete instrument," said Galla Rini, who plays 20 musical instruments. He has specialized on the accordion for 15 years and has written many musical compositions suitable for it. His Atlanta concert was the conclusion of a series of 15 appearances throughout the United States. He is returning today to Los Angeles, where he is accordionist for some of the motion picture producers.

Galla Rini's playing of Sibelius' tone poem "Finlandia" received great applause from the audience. He also played one of his own compositions, a Largo, and then concluded his concert with a selection from Offenbach, "Orpheus in the Underworld."

For his encores, Galla Rini played a number of popular tunes.

He appeared here under the sponsorship of Miss Irene Barnes, who conducts an accordion studio at 235 Peachtree St., N. E.—W. W.

Hungarian Anti-Red, Safe in U. S., Escaped From 'Shadow of Noose'

By CLINTON B. CONGER

Copyright 1947 by United Press

(Picture on Page 1)

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Zoltan Pfeiffer and his family arrived safely on American soil Wednesday at the end of a secret flight from Europe where the anti-Communist leader said he had escaped "from the shadow of the (Communist) noose" in Hungary.

It was a cloak-and-dagger flight from the Communists, who have finally muzzled their last opposition in Hungary. Pfeiffer was a tight-lipped mystery man until the crew of the American Airlines flagship, which brought him from Frankfurt, told him that in another hour he would be safely down on a U. S. airfield at Stephenville, Newfoundland.

Then his worried face relaxed.

"I know nothing since I went underground eight days ago, you understand," he began. "I cannot talk politics until I know. I do not know what has happened to my party, to my country. I can only tell you why I left."

He said that the Hungarian Communist Minister of the Interior, Laszlo Rajk, had "run amok" to suppress the last opposition to the alleged coalition government.

Hungarian secret police scour the country by the jeepload, he said. Where they cannot act, the dreaded Russian NKVD steps in.

The only part of his future he knows so far, he told me, is his duty to warn the New World against the Eastern "democracies" of the old.

"I did all a democrat of good will could do," he said. "Finally it reached the point where I was to make a speech in Parliament, but decided I could not. Opposition had inflamed the Communists to the point where my speaking would have endangered every man in my party. The Communists have dropped their mask in Hungary.

"I played along right into the shadow of the noose—what more can a man do?"

The strongest politician in Hungary, Prime Minister Ferenc Nagy, had been forced out of office in June. The battling priest, Bela Varga, hit the underground trail that month. Deszlo Sulyok picked up the torch for a while, then himself went underground. Pfeiffer was left alone to play his hand as best he could.

Last week, in farm carts, on foot, on trains, disguised by thick glasses and covered by a huge coat, Pfeiffer worked his way toward the Austrian border. Finally he received word that his wife, Magda, together with their blonde daughter Magda, 5, had reached safety in Austria. The next night, by way of towns and means he will not disclose, he, too, reached Vienna and safety.

"I cannot tell you how, because it would close the roads and hundreds of lives would be lost."

Pfeiffer, his wife and daughter; and his parliamentary aide, Laszlo Acsay, with Mrs. Acsay, were smuggled onto the American Airlines plane in Frankfurt before it pulled up to load other passengers. Listed on a suppressed manifest, they were smuggled through Amsterdam and Shannon.

Driving winds and drenching rain pursued him all the way from Europe. Gander, Newfoundland, was weathered in. As he reached LaGuardia 60-mile gusts were blowing and part of the runway was under water from high tides.

Here to plan a possible counter-attack from without against the Reds who now dominate his country, the politician said he was unsure what form this would take. First he will visit Ferenc Nagy and Hungary's former minister to the U. S., Aladar Szegedi-Maszak, in Washington.

Mayor Wants Low-Rent Dwellings Before Slum Demolishing Begins

Atlantans will retain the roofs over their heads in any program to eliminate 40,000 slum and substandard dwelling units if Mayor Hartsfield has his way.

Hartsfield's attitude was made known officially Wednesday when he recommended construction of at least 5,000 low-rental, public-assisted dwelling units under provisions of the United States Public Housing Act which was passed in 1937 and under which 5,000 low-cost Federal housing units were built in Atlanta.

Answering a questionnaire from Sen. Robert F. Wagner, of New York, Hartsfield gave a picture of the housing situation in Atlanta, expressed an opinion that private capital cannot provide housing that low-income groups can afford, and said "It would not be possible to demolish a great number of dwellings without, in my opinion, first building low-rental publicly-assisted dwelling units for low-income families . . . giving displaced persons a first preference."

The letter to Wagner, in answer to specific questions, was prepared by James H. Therrell, Director of the Atlanta Housing Authority. Hartsfield said it represented generally the attitude of the City administration.

Hartsfield pointed out that from 40,000 to 45,000 low-income families now reside in slum or substandard houses, and that the construction of an additional 5,000 low-cost projects would not be competitive in Atlanta, where at least 25,000 additional dwelling units are demanded now.

"In my opinion, private enterprise will not, nor ever will be able to provide decent housing for all these (low income) families at rents or prices within their ability to pay," Hartsfield said.

"It is my estimate that it would be desirable to provide at least 5,000 low-rent, low-income dwellings in the City of Atlanta over the period of the next four years."

The questionnaire answers expressed the opinion that the 5,000 Federal units which now exist in Atlanta have enhanced the value of contiguous properties, that most of the slum areas are within a one-mile radius of the downtown business district, and that the slum property is too valuable for private development without subsidies of some type. Hartsfield emphasized that Atlanta has no funds for such development.

Hartsfield said a waiting list of 10,000 families is now vainly seeking admission to existing Federal housing projects in Atlanta.

The Mayor believes the Government and private capital must join forces and pool their resources to improve housing conditions. He said he is convinced there is enough work for both the Government and for private developers.

Hartsfield's attitude on the slum and substandard elimination came on the heels of a meeting of the Slum Clearance at 3 p. m. today at the City Hall at which Atlanta's five-year program for elimination of the slum and substandard dwelling units will be considered.

Councilman John A. White, Chairman of the Slum Clearance group, and Ald. Lee Evans, Chairman of Council's Parks Committee, have engaged in a controversy over implementation of the five-year program and improvements for the Grant Park Zoo. White has charged that Mayor Hartsfield and certain members of Council are more interested in the comfort of zoo animals than in better living quarters for the estimated 162,000 who live in the blighted areas.

Ed W. Hiles, Executive Vice President of the Georgia Savings and Loan League, Inc., attacked Hartsfield's request for 5,000 additional Federal low-cost housing units for Atlanta.

In a prepared statement Hiles pointed out that the existing 5,000 units are not serving the "folks for whom we were led to believe they were intended when they made their appearance in Atlanta more than 10 years ago."

Hiles said some families having incomes up to $13,000 a year are residents of the housing projects. A Bureau of Census survey dated August, 1947, shows the median rental for all rental units in the Atlanta area is $20 per month contrasting with Atlanta Housing Authority averages between $30 and $40 per month, Hiles, statement contended.

"Whatever housing the $20-per-month folks are getting must, therefore, be coming from private enterprise," Hiles said.

WCONFAB

First on 55 Your Dial With Herb Bailey

31 Days . . . Until Dec. 15, when The Atlanta Constitution station, WCON, hits the airwaves . . . until J. Oscar Gulch's dream comes true and he (and you) can tune in at last to WCON—something he has been waiting for 33 years. During all this time he has been patiently waiting at his crystal set with ears glued to the headphones—waiting for the signal that the 550 frequency had been filled in the Atlanta area by WCON.

Even though Oscar may be a little old-fashioned by clinging to his 1914 Model T, Lizzie Mae, he has new ideas when it comes to radio. He has had installed for all these years a crystal set in Lizzie Mae, and as he proudly pointed out to me yesterday he was the FIRST man in Gulchville to have a radio in his car.

The fact that his crystal pick is permanently attached to a 550 frequency and he can't hear any other signal — hence he hasn't heard anything during the 33 years—is thoroughly beside the point, Oscar insists.

"I've got to have the best or I won't have anything!" he told me with an emphatic shake of his snowy locks and white beard which outlined his dignified features. "That's why I've waited so long for December 15, 1947."

Since Oscar has personally appointed me his amanuensis during the time he is in this vicinity, I shall try to report his activities in a dignified manner worthy of Oscar and Lizzie Mae.

I promised to run Oscar's itinerary today, but Oscar himself has not thoroughly mapped out his touring plans to various cities in this area.

J. Oscar Gulch shows "Lizzie Mae" to friends

Reason for this, according to Oscar, is that his Atlanta friends were so glad to see him after his 33-year self-imposed exile in Gulchville, they insisted on his remaining within the city for at least a week.

"I can't go against my friends' demands," he explained modestly while flicking a cigar ash from his featherduster. "You might say I'll release tomorrow the names of the cities we'll visit soon."

With that, he adjusted his goggles and roared off in Lizzie Mae to spread the news of his long wait and how happy he was that now at last he could see his dream come true.

Rich, Strickland Names Given to Scholarships

Two of Atlanta's best-loved and most civic-minded citizens, the late Walter H. Rich and the late Robert Strickland, Wednesday were honored by the Atlanta Music Club.

The honor came in the form of two memorial scholarships set up to perpetuate the memory of the outstanding leaders who contributed largely to the cause of music in Atlanta.

To be administered by the Board of Trustees of the Imogen Brower Hatcher Memorial Fund, the scholarships will be awarded annually to two gifted and deserving musicians to further their musical studies.

The scholarships were established at the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Imogen Brower Hatcher Memorial Fund Wednesday afternoon held at the Trust Company of Georgia.

Mr. Rich was honored for his service as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Memorial Fund in 1942. He also made definite contributions to the Fund.

The tribute was made to Mr. Strickland for his help and counsel in establishing the Fund in 1940.

Thus the names of Mr. Rich and Mr. Strickland join those of Robert S. Parker and Robert Schwab as the only four ever to be so honored by the Atlanta Music Club.

Cook Denies Teacher Pay Is 'Arbitrary'

Ed S. Cook, Chairman of the Atlanta Board of Education, took the witness stand in Federal Court here Wednesday to deny charges of "salary discrimination" between white and Negro teachers in city schools.

Cook, in the second day's hearing of a suit against the Board filed by Samuel L. Davis, mathematics and science teacher at Washington High School, declared the "track" system under which teachers' salaries are graduated here was "a fair salary schedule."

His testimony followed that of J. B. Blayton, professor of business administration at Atlanta University, offered by the plaintiffs as a statistical expert. In the opening session in a courtroom packed by Negro spectators, Blayton displayed a "sampling" of salaries which he said showed the average Negro high-school teacher received $110 base pay, against $231 for white teachers.

Miss Ira Jarrell, Superintendent of City Schools, sat throughout the hearing Wednesday. Testimony will be resumed today at 10 a. m. before U. S. District Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

The suit, filed four years ago, names as defendants the then members of the Atlanta Board of Education and seeks a permanent injunction to restrain the Board from "an unlawful discrimination."

Presbyterian Meeting

A quiz contest, in which prizes will be awarded, and a story-telling period will feature a meeting of the Presbyterian Officers' Association of Atlanta at 6:30 p. m. today at the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. J. K. Fancher, President, announces.

A Three Days' Cough is Your Danger Signal

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

CORRECTION

On September 14th an advertisement appeared in this newspaper which included a statement that "Halliwell Cold Waves had been approved as safe by your U. S. Pure Food and Drug Administration."

The Food and Drug Administration does not approve any cosmetic product and therefore has not approved any commercial permanent wave lotion. In May of this year investigation of cold waves by the Food and Drug Administration resulted in the issuance of a release which ended with the following words:

"These studies support the view that ammonium thiolycolate hair wave solutions are safe for use if the usual directions are carefully followed."

The Food and Drug Administration in its capacity of guardian of the public health acts against cosmetic products which it considers deleterious to the public health. It does not give positive approval to any cosmetic product. Accordingly, the advertisement of September 14th was to that extent erroneous.

LET'S SEE NOW . . .

He Enlisted as a Boy---Something Happened

By DORIS LOCKERMAN,
Woman's News Editor

He stood, a kindly old man in his seventies, hunched in the rain on Peachtree Street as the crisply uniformed figures of the Armistice Day parade clicked past. His pale blue eyes were filled with tears.

"My boy was in that war," he said, reflectively, as one reviews the incredible facts in an unbelievable tale. "He was just a baby, really. I had to sign his papers when he enlisted, he was so young. He weighed only 125 pounds. I can see him now in that Marine outfit."

He paused. The Marines were marching briskly past his lonely vision.

"He fought through nine big engagements," he went on, "and then on Nov. 9—two days before armistice—mind you, he was shot!"

I mummured a meaningless phrase of sympathy. Another boy who died to end wars. . . .

"But you know," he brightened, almost smiling, "he got all right, and wanted to stay in Germany for a while, the rascal. When he finally came home, we hardly knew him! He was a man . . . a fine, good-looking strapping fellow about twice as big as I am now, and he had life by the hand and everything was rosy. Grown up, you know, and sure of himself!"

If They Only Knew

He stopped, apparently determined to rationalize his sadness and give me a picture not too sordid.

"Well," he said, "there wasn't anything for him to do when he got home. He looked everywhere for a job, and got pretty discouraged. Finally, he went out to the Coast. He got lined up there with a railroad. He married, and one time he brought his wife home for Christmas with us. We liked her fine.

"Then"—the old father moved his hands in understanding—"something happened. They broke up. He wandered away."

The parade was ending, the last pounding sounds of the drums beginning to die away.

"Now we haven't heard from him in two years. I don't even know where he is. If only I knew he was alive."

He tried a smile. "Well," he said, blinking, "I guess I'll be getting along."

His shoulders, as he moved away in the crowd, were bravely stiff. I watched the white rim of hair under his hat as he lost himself in the medley of another day of commemoration.

Symbolic Food for Thought

Dr. Frank G. Slaughter, author of the new book, "The Golden Isle," says stomach ulcers are the exclusive problem of people who are filled with repressions and resentments of one kind or another, almost always accumulated in childhood and early youth. The only way to get rid of the complexes that tie the stomach nerves into knots, he said, is to recognize the resentments that caused them. Psychoanalysis accomplishes this, but Slaughter remarked that the food prescribed for ulcers—milk—has its psychological effect as well.

"It is symbolic," he said, at a luncheon at Rich's, "that milk is the food of babies. It is an admission that the patient has taken himself back to his babyhood and can wipe out whatever has troubled him. It is even more effective when the patient eats baby food and milk in public, while his friends work on thick, rare steaks. "It is a public admission of retrogression," he said, "and very, very good for the person concerned."

MRS. MARY KATE DUSKIN
She Points the Way to Richer Living

WOMAN OF THE WEEK

YWCA Director Receives Salute From Constitution

By LENNA McKINLEY

This week's salute to women of accomplishment goes to Mary Kate Duskin, Executive Director of the Atlanta YWCA.

A woman of great personal charm and a leader who impresses everyone with the sincerity of her approach to her work, Mrs. Duskin has pointed the way to richer living for thousands of Atlanta girls and women during the six years that she has headed the activities of this organization.

Assuming her position at a time when Atlanta, along with other big cities over the country, was beginning to feel the disrupting influences of concentrated war effort, it was largely through her vision that the YWCA was able to broaden its services in a way that helped to alleviate the shock of the war years.

And, now that the war is over with the peace yet to be won, Mrs. Duskin is helping to set a fine example of "World Community" living in the wholesome health and recreation program which goes on daily at YWCA headquarters on Auburn Avenue, with Protestant, Catholic, Jew and Greek Orthodox members alike learning to work and play and live together happily.

Last year alone more than 13,000 girls and women—from every section of the city, and embracing all economic groups—participated in this democratic, Christian program toward better living. Also under Mrs. Duskin's supervision is the Phyllis Wheatley branch of YWCA, which benefits Negro girls and women in an equally needed community service.

Born in Mississippi, Mrs. Duskin had her own lessons in learning to live with all kinds of people in moving from town to town as the daughter of an itinerant Presbyterian minister. A graduate of Maryville College, Tenn., where she majored in French with the idea of going on to Paris for further study, and then entering the teaching profession, she decided after teaching one year that she wanted a closer relationship with people than her chosen profession would allow her. She then went to Nashville to train for YWCA work, and to this day, has had a hand, in some way, in this organization designed "to train girls for Christian leadership."

It is the belief of Mrs. Duskin that every woman needs warm friendships and active participation in some group interest. And it is the purpose of the YWCA, she points out, to provide these needs in a democratic, Christian atmosphere. There are no bars to any of the activities offered, but members who find themselves congenial naturally fall into interest groups that are self-governing. And, whenever as many as 10 members request instruction on one particular interest, a leader is found and that group becomes a club within a club, with its own members serving as officers.

With Atlanta fast changing from a "white-collar town" to an industrial city during the war years, Mrs. Duskin and her associates began early in 1942 to plan special activities for feminine workers in war plants here. Dances, bridge and other forms of recreation were planned each week, with service men included in the festivities. Both business women and industrial workers liked the idea so well that the custom of bringing their husbands and friends into the circle for certain programs will be continued, says Mrs. Duskin.

Another activity instituted as a result of the war and its attending restrictions was the "Fun-in-Town" program of Summer activities, held at the Y for the past five years, which has proven such a boon to girls who have been unable to go away to camp. Five days a week girls were privileged to participate in all types of sports, study groups and craft classes. This, too, will be a must from now on, it seems.

Only recently, a new "Split-Shift" program has been planned at headquarters for those girls who are off from work for three or four hours during the day and then go back to work. Those leisure hours are now used in health and recreation programs at the Y, where many fine friendships are made.

Although present facilities are inadequate for resident accommodations at the Y, the organization established a placement bureau during the war to help its members secure recommended living quarters, and still operates this service. More than 800 girls were placed happily during the past year.

It is the dream of Mrs. Duskin and her coworkers to be able to build, in the near future, a fine new building, where adequate facilities will be available, not only for resident accommodations for members who need it, but for the many new activities which a fast-growing city will demand.

"Although the broad program of YWCA is determined by national policy, each branch is autonomous in that it adjusts its own program to the needs of the community," Mrs. Duskin pointed out. And such will be our program—to try to anticipate the needs of Atlanta girls and women and give them real leadership in the democratic way of life."

Peace Plate for Today

Today's Peace Plate, suggested by the Consumer Service Section, Citizens' Food Committee, is Braised Lamb Shanks and Noodles, a thrifty course-in-one dish that jollies up one of the less-tender cuts of meat. A serving of Brussels sprouts and crisp raw carrot and raisin slaw will fill in a daily "must" of something green, something yellow, in the vegetable way.

Top this with a one-crust apple-crumble pie, and you've managed to strike the heart of the food-conservation problem, which is to save wheat and thwart famine.

BRAISED LAMB SHANKS AND NOODLES

3 lamb shanks
¼ cup flour
3 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup sliced onions
1 small green pepper, seeded and sliced
1½ quarts boiling water
½ pound wide noodles

Have your butcher cut each shank into 3 pieces. Combine flour with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Roll meat in this mixture, and brown thoroughly on all sides in the hot fat. Then add onions and green pepper, and brown slightly. Add boiling water, remaining 2 teaspoons salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper; cover and simmer for 1 hour. Then skim off excess fat; add noodles, cover, and continue cooking about 20 minutes or until noodles are tender. Serve shanks in center of platter with noodles and gravy around them. Serves 5 to 6.

APPLE CRUMBLE PIE

6 large tart apples, pared and thinly sliced
1 unbaked pie shell
¾ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon lemon juice
⅓ cup brown sugar
¼ cup sifted flour
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
⅓ cup nuts, cut

Arrange sliced apples in pie shell and cover with mixture of sugar, salt, spices and lemon juice. Mix brown sugar and flour. Cut in butter fine. Add nuts. Sprinkle over apples. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 1 hour.

DAILY DOUBLE DIET

Stick by New Eating Pattern To Keep Slim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

There are almost as many different reducing diets as there are overweights and stretched end to end they would reach as far as the excess beltline inches . . . or from Portland, Me., to Portland, Oregon.

But for all that, there is only one good reducing diet and that's the one you've been following. It's not a diet, really, but a pattern of eating with the calories restricted to individual reducing requirements. Still, this being the tenth and last day of the series, you may wonder what to do next. . . .

You can't say: "Good, now I can go back to eating." You've been eating, and losing weight. You'd have to say: "Now I can go back to overeating!" But that wouldn't save food or your waistline. Why not try more of the same pattern and get your weight down to healthy normal? Have good meals, but keep them just short of your full requirements. And when you reach normal, these food habits will stand you in good stead—they will help to fix your weight at normal.

It isn't necessary to count calories; just keep the pattern along the right lines. Have a good breakfast, but not too much toast. At noon, have the regular lunch, but eat only one roll, with half a pat of butter, and skip the rich dessert. At dinner, eat only one starchy food—make a choice of potatoes, bread or dessert. Eat a serving of lean meat or fish or fowl. Since meat is so expensive, eat more fish. If you like buttermilk, fine. If not, have skim milk part of the time, and some whole milk, and cheese. Have plenty of low-calorie vegetables, salads and fruit.

Continue to eat three moderate meals a day, instead of one enormous meal. That habit of overeating at dinner is fattening for the scientific reason that calories are burned according to the body's demand for energy and those in excess of immediate needs are stored. So follow Sec. Marshall's excellent suggestion and push yourself away from the table!

Mrs. E. M. Manning, President, Atlanta Senior Hadassah, discusses Palestine's Youth Immigration movement with Mrs. Martha Sharp, Christian Zionist.

Christian Zionist Says Jewish Children Safe in Palestine

The British have intimated that if they approve the partition of Palestine, and withdraw from their mandate of that beleaguered country, they will send all of the Jewish children in their protective zones to their Zionist homeland forthwith.

That, Mrs. Martha Sharp told Atlanta Hadassah women and their friends here Wednesday, would be at once a challenge and a heavy burden to the Jews in Palestine who are already pressed for funds to rehabilitate the children admitted to their care under the restricted British immigration allotment.

The gripping, heart-searing story of the children of Jewry poured from the vivid memory of the handsome wife of the Rev. Waitstill Hastings Sharp of Boston, a Unitarian minister, who has just returned from a tour of Europe and Palestine, and has spent years in refugee rescue on the continent. She holds decorations from Portugal, Czechoslovakia and France for her relief work with women and children since 1940.

"There are only 170,000 Jewish children under 17 still alive in Europe," she told her listeners at the Mayfair Club, "And 90 percent of them are orphans. More than 75 percent of them are boys, because, of course, the Nazis murdered the little girls. At least 54,000 of these children should be admitted to Palestine immediately, from Displaced Persons Camps, from Hungary, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and from France. They have been brutalized, degraded, treated far worse than animals for seven or eight long years in prison and concentration camps. They must be saved at once . . . . to save a race of people."

Mrs. Sharp praised the Youth Aliyah (immigration) movement which Hadassah represents officially in America, explained the admirable program at work in Palestine for their child rescue work.

"Palestine could take care of many more now, as far as natural resources are concerned," she said, "and if they develop the Jordan River for power and irrigation, our own engineers have estimated the land could support 4,000,000 people. There are only 1,500,000 Jews left alive in Europe."

She denied that Jewish children are endangered by the Arab-Jewish violence. They are stationed far in the country, she explained, and added "the average Arab and Jew get along very well together. The boycott against Jewish merchandise was engendered entirely by Arabs outside of Palestine. They are jealous of the standard of living, dislike to compare it with their own feudal, degenerate, diseased countries.

Mrs. E. M. Manning, President of Hadassah, introduced Mrs. Sharp. Her address climaxed the organization's Child Welfare campaign for funds for Palestine.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

Our tiresome partner, who for several days has been responding to our opening bids with one no trump, has outworn his welcome, and after today he is dismissed. To be sure, he has done nothing wrong, but it is probably more entertaining to have a partner who commits an occasional error, but who now and again participates with enthusiasm in the auction.

In today's hand South bid one spade and North responded with his usual one no trump. South elected to bid two no trump, coaxing his partner to go on, but North felt that he was unable to accept the invitation and passed.

East opened his fourth best club, declarer played the 10 from dummy, West won with the queen and returned the suit. North played the 9, East the ace, and dummy unblocked with the king in order to get a quick entry to his hand. East continued with the third round of clubs, not with any idea of establishing the suit but because he felt that a shift to one of the other suits would make life too easy for the declarer.

North then led a low diamond, playing the 10 from dummy in order to keep East out of the lead. West won with the queen and could do no better than return the suit, whereupon declarer cashed three diamond tricks and then took the spade finesse. The queen of spades was the fourth and final trick taken by the defense.

South immediately reprimanded his partner for not going to game. "I put up very strong bidding, partner," he said. To which North quite promptly replied, "I bid my hand to the hilt." North was absolutely right.

It is an elementary principle of bidding tactics that you do not ask your partner to bid your hand for you. South should have known there was a game in the hand, despite his partner's weak bid, because he had two aces in excess of an opening bid.

We have observed that when your partner responds with one no trump if you have one trick and a half excess, there is a chance for game; two tricks excess, game is certain.

South had a point count of 20. North's response of one no trump promises at least six so that South should have known the partnership had sufficient values to contract for game.

A bid of two no trump by South would state, "Partner, I would like you to go on if you have more than a minimum announced by your one no trump." North, having only six, had the textbook minimum for such a response, and having already given his all, could not be expected to carry on.

Blend Lipstick With the Colors You're Wearing

By MAYNITA GERRY

It's murder, she says.

The wrong shade of lipstick will do the same thing to the harmony of your makeup and costume that a deep swig of hemlock did to Socrates—kill it, in case you've forgotten your history.

"With the correct lipstick, any woman can wear any color," said Miss Judy Woodleigh, special representative with Germain Monteil, "provided she co-ordinates the color of her makeup with the color of her clothes."

This is infallible rule number one, according to Miss Woodleigh. Rule number two governs the use of matching lipstick and rouge—always! Never under any circumstances should contrasting shades of lipstick and rouge appear on the same face at the same time . . . not unless you and all your friends are color blind, they shouldn't.

Although lipsticks and rouges range in shade from pale rose to deep garnet, they're all blends and mutations of three basic types of red which are reflected in a new color index. They are true reds, yellow reds and blue reds, any and all of which can be worn harmoniously with only two colors—black and blue. True and yellow reds should be worn with brown and beige, and true and blue reds with navy and gray.

"There is a lot of psychology in makeup," Miss Woodleigh pointed out. "The psychological effect good makeup has on the observer is invariably reflected in the wearer. Likewise, bad makeup. I never see the amazing transformation that can be wrought with the clever use of makeup without being reminded of a little jingle we used to chant as children: "A little bit of powder and a little bit of paint makes everybody look like they ain't."

Miss Woodleigh will be the guest of J. P. Allen's cosmetic department through Saturday of this week, where she will be available for consultation.

Are You The Chef Of A Kitchenette? Then Here's A Little Creation For You. A grand change from meat and oh so simple to prepare. Make a jellied mold with crab, lobster, tuna or salmon and serve it with this unusual dressing: Thin mayonnaise slightly with enough liquid from your jar of chutney. Stir in one tablespoon of chopped chutney to each one-half cup of thinned dressing. Get out your best linen and table settings for this dish! Very good for club luncheons.

AUTUMN COMFORT

BRISK FALL DAYS call for a warm, solid main dish for supper. To make everybody happy I suggest Hormel Chili Con Carne. It's a tangy dish yet not too hot the way Hormel makes it. Just the right blend of lively spices goes beautifully with the rich, not-too-hot, not-too-mild meat sauce. Open a 1-lb. tin and empty into a saucepan. Heat over a slow fire till bubbly hot. Serve it with this good combination:

Peel and scoop out centers of 2 cucumbers. Chop and mix with sharp cheese. Refill cucumbers. Wrap in wax paper. Chill. Cut in inch pieces.

LAUNDER BETTER—LIVE LONGER!

DO YOU STILL call your washday a blue day? Well—you won't do that anymore if you introduce yourself to Clorox and get acquainted with its quick, easy way of helping you with your laundry problems. Clorox is an extra-gentle bleach. It is free from caustic and other harsh substances . . . made by an exclusive patented process. The preferred method of using Clorox is in the first rinse after washing; just immerse white and color-fast cottons and linens for 15 min. in 1 Tbsp. Clorox for 1 gal. warm water, then rinse clear. It also reduces rubbing so your expensive bedlinens and towels, fine tablecloths and napkins will last longer. Clorox is an added safeguard to health, too. It disinfects . . . gives you that extra margin of hygienic cleanliness. Out of that economical bottle of Clorox comes protection for your wash and yourself. MORE CHICKEN FOR YOU

I'M SO GLAD I can tell you the new way to ¼ more servings from every chicken you roast. It's so easy: Brush the chicken all over with Kitchen Bouquet, to get that fine golden brown color. Then slow-roast it at 300° F. This method makes the old short-cooking at high temperatures almost a sin, because of the waste. The Kitchen Bouquet way keeps the bird juicy, preserves vitamins, enhances the flavor and prevents shrinkage. Nothing complicated—just follow the simple directions on the leaflet in every Kitchen Bouquet package. The first time you serve a succulent, appetizingly brown chicken, roasted the Kitchen Bouquet way, you'll see the saving.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Hunting Trip to Northwest Climaxed by Surprises

Two popular Atlantans, Bill Howland and Dr. Crawford Barnett, have just returned from a hunting trip to Canada, and thereby hangs two interesting stories! Bill, who is the well-known head of the Time and Life Bureau here, was combining business with a hunting trip, while his wife, Mary, was conducting a little hunt of her own right here in Atlanta. She was house-hunting.

When Bill returned he was informed that the Howland address would soon be 295 West Wesley Rd., for Mary had negotiated for the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pollard. However, Bill wasn't too surprised, for he was used to things like that. You see, when he returned from Mexico several years ago, Mary informed him that she had bought the home on Brighton Road where they now live. But Mary had a surprise, too, for Bill brought her a pair of pheasant feather earrings, made especially for her from some of the game he bagged.

Crawford's wife, the former Penelope Brown, also had a surprise. For Crawford informed her he had bagged a moose and it was being shipped to Atlanta. After the family enjoys eating the moose meat, the Barnetts plan to have its head mounted. They will display it at Pennyroyal Farm, their country place on Akers Mill Road, along with a mounted sailfish and a large bearskin rug. Crawford caught the fish in Miami several years ago, and the bear in North Carolina.

The two Atlanta hunters left several weeks ago by plane for Edmonton, Alberta. The duo went first to Lake Louise and Banff and it was while at the latter place that Crawford saw Col. and Mrs. Philip Moore, whom he and Penelope had known during a visit to Jamaica, West Indies. Crawford and Bill went pheasant hunting, and then Crawford left by train for the Hayes River section. From there he went by jeep, then by horseback for two days, and finally by foot into the north woods. It was while he was on this portion of the trip that he bagged the moose.

The Smiths Go Pheasant Shooting

Jane and Ben Smith are just back from a whirl in New York, where they stayed at Hotel St. Moritz. But their sojourn in the metropolis was just half of the fun. They were invited by their good friend, Dorothy Allen, who lives in Catasauqua, Pa., to come down for a visit and to go pheasant shooting with her. So, down they went and had a wonderful catch.

The popular Atlantans flew East and back in their private plane.

They Met in Montreal

A year ago about this time, Julia Roberts, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Roberts, of Macon, had her plans all set to spend the Winter in New York, where she was to occupy an apartment with two of her close friends. However, the girls changed their plans and disappointed her at the last minute.

Not to be outdone, Julia packed her trunks and left for Montreal, Canada, to spend the Winter with her brother, Dr. Walter Roberts, and his wife. Dr. Roberts, it seems, was taking a five-year diploma course at the Neurological Institute of McGill University there.

Shortly after she arrived in Montreal, Julia landed a job with Canadian Industries, Ltd. Then she met a young man by the name of Ralph Gardner Keefer, who is known as Bob Keefer, though no one knows exactly why. Now Bob has persuaded Julia to give up her job and take one for life as Mrs. Keefer.

Their engagement was announced Sunday, and after their marriage on Nov. 29, Julia will return to Montreal for keeps.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe, mixed in your own kitchen. It gives you about four times as much cough syrup for your money, and you'll find it wonderful, for real relief.

(You can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Then put 2¼ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This makes a full pint of medicine that will please you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its quick action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

They carried bouquets of gold and bronze chrysanthemums, and wore wreaths of matching flowers in their hair.

The bridesmaids, including Mrs. Dan MacDougald, Jr., Mrs. Clark Howell, Jr., Mrs. Robert W. Chambers, Miss Laurabelle Jarvis, Miss Bolling Fortson, of Jacksonville, and Miss Genevieve Monsour, of Paris, France, wore costumes like those of the maid and matron of honor, and carried identical bouquets.

Given in marriage by her uncle, W. W. Mallory, the lovely blonde bride wore a gown of gleaming white satin, fashioned with a square neckline, a bodice of tulle lace over satin, and long lace sleeves. The delicate lace, taken from the wedding gown of her mother, Mrs. Jean Bienvenu, was exquisitely embroidered with tiny crystal beads. The veil worn by the bride belonged to her great-aunt, the late Mrs. Robert Lowry. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

A. B. Martin served as his brother's best man. The groomsmen included E. S. Gay, Jr., Clark Howell, Jr., Alec Smith, Jr., William Appleby, Hugh Quin, and William H. Black.

Mrs. Bienvenu wore a becoming gown of pale blue crepe fashioned with short sleeves, a full pleated skirt, and trimmed in lace. She wore a hat of brown tulle, and her flowers were lavender orchids. Mrs. Carlile Martin, mother of the groom, wore beige crepe embroidered in gold, a matching hat, and her flowers were bronze orchids. Mrs. Joseph Orme, grandmother of the bride, attended the wedding in a gown of black crepe trimmed in blue and wore a spray of orchids.

Mr. Martin and his bride left on a wedding trip to Florida. Mrs. Martin traveled in a smart gray flannel suit and matching hat. Upon their return, the popular couple will reside on Piedmont Road.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. W. D. Dana, of West Orange, N. J., aunt of the groom; Mrs. A. B. Leach, grandmother of the groom, also of West Orange, and Mrs. Carlile Martin, of Baltimore, grandmother of the groom.

A Solution: Withhold Scores Till Monday

We modestly hesitate to mention it, but in the interest of saving football from absolute destruction, will reluctantly part with the solution to the game's most pressing problem.

It's really simple. Official scores of football games will not be announced at the end of games. Rather, they will be withheld until Monday after a board of arbitration, including the two competing coaches, the officials and Kilroy, review movies of the contest and decide the winner.

We are suggesting this at our own peril, fully realizing the sports writers around the nation will rise up in wrath at the mere idea of doing away with something which indeed livens up otherwise dull Monday and Tuesday sports pages during the football season.

Nevertheless, fellows, it is better to suffer the consequences than to have no football—and thereby, no jobs—at all.

We have been toying with the idea since the early season controversy between Georgia's Mr. Wallace Butts and Alabama's Mr. Harold Drew, who spent the better part of a week replaying their game of the previous Saturday.

But the final decision to reveal our solution to a no-doubt breathless public was reached only after events of the past couple of days.

'We Wuz Robbed'

If you are a reader of the sports pages—or even a looker at the pictures—you no doubt are cognizant of the Georgia Tech-Navy and the Ohio State-Northwestern situations. It is the former with which we are mainly concerned.

Captain Thomas Hamilton, coach of the Navy, looked at his movies of the Tech game and promptly announced: "We wuz robbed."

Mr. Robert E. Lee Dodd, No. 1 Citizen of the Georgia Tech campus and probably next Governor of the State, looked at his pictures and said: "You wuzn't."

Mr. Albert Booth, the referee of the game, didn't look at anything and said, in effect: "I only have two eyes and go under the assumption that coaches don't coach illegally."

The Associated Press hustled around and printed some pictures of the questioned play so that one and all could see and decide for themselves as to the legality of the game-winning touchdown. The fact that the pictures show neither one way nor the other has nothing to do with it.

So, all in all, a grand time has been had by everybody.

Officials Catch It

All of which means there are only two choices to save the game of football—one, doing away with the taking of movies or, two, our suggestion to withhold official scores until movies have been reviewed.

Of the two, the latter is undoubtedly the best. After all, what would happen to all the quarterback clubs if there were no movies of games for members to watch at their meetings.

As in all similar cases, the officials catch it.

Booth certainly should not be blamed for the present Tech-Navy controversy, whether the play in question was legal or illegal. But you can bet he will be.

In other words, Booth or no other referee is able to check the position of the quarterback on the T-formation on every play just in the event the latter finally winds up on the receiving end of a pass. There is too much of the obvious for him to be worrying about the exceptional.

Taught Legally

We are not saying the play, on which Quarterback Jim Southard took a pass from Red Patton for the touchdown, was legal. Neither are we saying it was illegal, simply because we don't know.

We saw the game and saw the series of pictures taken from the movies. And we still don't know.

But we do know this. The play as taught by the Georgia Tech coaches is legal and we assume it was run in the same manner as it had been practiced.

Hamilton's assertion that it was illegal would indicate Dodd coached and installed in his offense a shady play. There is little doubt that Hamilton didn't mean to imply this, rather, meaning that the officials missed one.

But a lot of people will read the implication into his statement.

Which is bad. We don't know a coach who would deliberately teach an illegal play.

Therefore, it looks as if the only thing to do to prevent recurrences is to withhold official scores of the games until Monday.

Darlington Faces Marist Tonight

Murphy, Bass End '47 Slate

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

The flickering candle burns low for the four football teams that tangle in two GIAA games here tonight, one winding up its 1947 campaign and three others giving out with their semifinal efforts.

Marist and Rome's Darlington, already assured of successful season but out of the running for the State championship, are slated for a bruising engagement at Ponce de Leon Park. Murphy's comeback boys, who have surged to great heights after being buffeted from pillar to post in early season frays, will call it quits after tackling Bass at Decatur tonight. Both games are tagged with an 8 o'clock starting time.

Marist still must tangle with Central High, of Knoxville, and Darlington will pit its might against Chattanooga's McCallie on Nov. 28 with a chance to tie the Tennessee boys for the Mid-South Conference title.

Shorty Doyal's Ivy Streeters, with a won five, lost two, tied one record, are perhaps as strong as any team in the State when they are able to play their transfer stars as they will tonight. Harry Milligan's Darlington has belted Alabama State Teachers, 13-6; Sewanee, 14-6; Castle Heights, 14-0, and Riverside, 33-0. The Romans essayed a 7-7 stalemate with West Georgia College and bowed to GMA, 12-7, and Tennessee Military Institute, 13-7.

The Doyalmen go into the fray fresh from a 7-0 upset win over St. James, of Port Arthur, Texas. The game will mark perhaps the final appearance here of several outstanding players including George Maloof, All-GIAA end.

The Cadets, however, have received feelers to appear in several postseason bowl games, including those at Kingsport, Tenn.; Savannah and one in Louisiana, and probably will accept one bid.

Joel Eaves' Murphy boys, triumphant over O'Keefe, 32-0, and Roosevelt, 13-6, and defeated by powerful Grady and Smith teams, 14-6 and 7-0, in recent games, will be seeking their third victory tonight without the services of injured Marion Bond, fine triple threat.

Swede Phillips' Bass team has scored only in the Baker Village game, which they lost 26-25, but have shown promise of breaking loose with heavy scoring in several recent frays.

Jim Ransbotham, Billy Pittard, Bobby Keel and George Burns all are quite capable of going all the way from Phillips' unorthodox double wing, short punt and spread formations.

Constitution Staff Photo—Hugh Stovall

MURPHY STANDOUT—One of the big reasons Joe Eaves' Murphy High eleven has made such a fine late-season comeback is End Buck Bradberry. The star second baseman for the Gate City Cards, Georgia's 1946 American Legion baseball champions, is a stout defensive performer and has done well with the punting chores for the Eagles since Marion Bond suffered a broken collar-bone two weeks ago. Murphy will close its season Thursday night at Decatur against Bass.

ROBERTS' PREP GRID PICKS

(Charlie Roberts, after prognosticating 15 of 19 games correctly last week, gives the crystal ball a twirl and comes up with the following predictions for this week's high school battles. Of last week's games, he picked five by the exact margin of victory, including Smith-Grady and Brown-Bass City League tilts and the one-TD Savannah-Charleston verdict. Murphy, Marist, Russell and TMI upset him along with the opposition.)

THURSDAY GAMES

Murphy over Bass by one TD. (Eagles taught us a lesson. Won't be flabbergasted by Bass scoring outburst or victory though.)

Marist over Darlington by one TD. (Cadets as good as any when transfers play. Strong Romans often fool us, however.)

FRIDAY GAMES

Brown over Smith by two TDs. (Rebs have more scoring power. Will take passes to turn trick. If field is sloppy it's even-stephen.)

Griffin over College Park by seven TDs. (Cavan's Caperers most powerful team we've seen in B Division. They show no mercy.)

North Fulton over GMA by one TD. (Cadets only so-so without transfers. We like Bulldogs for upset win.)

Decatur over Cedartown by 4 TDs. (Bulldogs wind up third straight title campaign just coasting, it says here.)

West Fulton over Newnan by one TD. (Shaky vote for running ability of Hitchcock, Gilman and Company.)

FRIDAY OUT-OF-TOWN

Richmond Academy over Savannah by one TD. (Hard knocking in title scrap. Cooper, Beale score more. Geechies tough at home, though.)

Gainesville over LaGrange. (After bitter struggle. Except for absence of injured Dick Hill we'd like Grangers. A real battle.)

Marietta over Carrollton by three TDs. (Blue Devils good but in and out. Could lose but not likely.)

Lanier over Baker Village by five TDs. (Poets to shoot works with championship in sight.)

Columbus over Benedictine by three TDs. (Butler's Batterers much rougher folks on home grounds.)

Rome over Chattanooga City High by one TD. (Shot in dark on powerful Hill Toppers.)

Canton over Dallas by five TDs. (D. T. Smith's boys don't figure to lose another. Wheeler Fowler has too much on ball.)

SATURDAY GAME

Grady over O'Keefe by four TDs. (Knights take out disappointment over loss to Smith on injury-riddled Irish. Latter can't get going.)

Emory Frosh Edge Senior Eleven, 7-6

Scoring on the last play of the game on a 30-yard pass play from Bill Bradley to Bart Riley, the Emory Freshmen downed the Sophomores, 7-6, in an Intramural League tilt on the Emory gridiron Wednesday afternoon. Bradley circled end for the all-important point.

The Seniors also hit pay dirt in the final period with Clarence Lonentzson bolting over from the one to climax a 20-yard drive.

TOUGH FOR TACKLES, PASS DEFENDERS

They'll Decide Tide Game, Dodd Thinks

By F. M. WILLIAMS

Georgia Tech's strongest defensive positions have been Alabama's favorite running spots this season, so for that reason Coach Bobby Dodd thinks the number one problem facing his Yellow Jackets Saturday in the South's top football contest is stopping Harry Gilmer's passing.

The Crimson Tide has ruined at least two of its foes—Georgia and Kentucky — by smashing both tackle positions to smithereens. That's where the Tide has built up its yardage along the ground while Gilmer posed as an aerial threat. He never was called upon to prove his worth.

"I believe our tackles will play a good game," Coach Dodd said Wednesday, "but even if they don't, I still think the first thing we've got to do is stop Gilmer's passing to win."

Dodd indicated he doesn't think Hurlin' Harry has uncoiled his famous right arm this season with the deadly accuracy shown in the past. He hasn't had to, what with Lowell Tew, Bill Cadenhead and Gilmer, himself, finding opposition lines vulnerable.

"I believe we have four tackles capable of taking care of themselves," Dodd said. He was talking about Bobby Davis, a cinch for All-America; Ralph Slaten, Dan Braddach and Tom Coleman, who have been carrying the load in all the Jackets' close games.

The Tech mentor said Alabama's offense probably puts more pressure on the tackles than any his club has faced this season.

"They trap a lot, and they have a fine system for blocking in or out," Dodd said, "but I still believe our tackles will play a good game."

That Dodd is worried about pass defense was evident during the long practice, held in brisk weather.

The Jackets stayed on pass defense for at least half the time and on occasions didn't look too good. The red shirts completed several tosses.

The Tech coaches are keeping their fingers crossed and hoping for the best from the injured list.

They honestly don't think Frank Ziegler will play, hope to get a little defensive work out of Lewis Hook and Jack Griffin, but Hook is the only one being counted on for much duty.

All three, along with End Jimmy Castleberry, worked out in sweat clothes Wednesday. Castleberry, banged up pretty badly against Navy, will start the game.

A light drill today will wind up work here for the Jackets.

NAVY COACH DID NOT DESIRE TO DETRACT FROM TECH WIN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 12—(AP)—Capt. Tom Hamilton, Navy's football coach, Wednesday issued a formal statement saying he wanted in no way to detract from Georgia Tech's victory over the Middies last Saturday in which a touchdown pass has been questioned.

Hamilton's statement said:

"I wish to make clear that the discussion concerning the touchdown play in our game with Georgia Tech last Saturday was not initiated by me or any other Navy spokesman.

"The matter was brought up by newspaper reporters."

He said he had given an honest answer and pointed out he had no complaint "and did not want to detract from Georgia Tech's victory in any way."

"I have great friendship for Bobby Dodd as well as respect for his coaching. It seems to me that the situation has now developed to the point where credit is being taken from a fine well-coached Georgia Tech team. . . .

Bulldogs Work on Defense To Stop Excessive Enemy Punt Returns

By JACK JACKSON

ATHENS, Nov. 12—The emphasis was on halting enemy punt returns Wednesday afternoon as Georgia's Bulldogs wound up rough preparation for Saturday's traditional clash with the improved Auburn Tigers in Columbus.

Bulldog regulars worked on the thing which has cost them touchdowns in four games this Fall, behind the kicking of Joe Geri, Johnny Rauch, and Lukie Brunson. Dopey Phelps of Kentucky, Harry Gilmer of Alabama, Jim Spivatal of Oklahoma A. & M., and Hal Griffin of Florida have hauled back Georgia punts for scores this season, and Coach Wally Butts is determined to break this streak in the final three games of the season.

The Georgians appear in their best condition of the year for the Tiger game, with Howard Johnson, reserve tackle, still the only casualty.

Bobby Walston, freshman halfback from Columbus, Ohio, continues to improve, and was the star as Bulldog reserves scrimmaged against a B team combination. Walston, who plays left half, kicks off for the Bulldogs and has seen lots of action in recent games. His catch of Rauch's pass for a touchdown in the Oklahoma game was one of the best of the season.

Clayton Deavers, who shares the right tackle duties with Porter Payne, has shaken a midseason leg injury and was the defensive star of Wednesday afternoon's work. Another one of the Texas boys on the squad, Deavers took over regular duties in the Oklahome game.

The Bulldogs work here again Thursday and move to Columbus early Friday morning. They're comfortable favorites over Auburn, but the Tigers' showing against Mississippi State last week stamped them as much improved, and they always turn in their peak performance in this traditional battle.

Donaldson and Geri are expected to see plenty of action against Auburn in Columbus.

THE RICHER BOYS WANT OLE MISS

Delta Binds Rebels; Other Bowls Boil

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 12—(AP)—Sponsors of the new Delta Bowl football game promised Wednesday that Mississippi would be one of the attractions here Jan. 1 despite reports that the Rebels, already under contract, may be "receptive" to bids from one of the larger post-season classics.

Dick Dewey, Commander of the sponsoring Amvets, declared: "Ole Miss has not asked to be released from our contract. Under no circumstances will we release them."

Dewey's comment followed a report out of Miami that Ole Miss "is available" for the Orange Bowl and a subsequent statement by Rebel Coach Johnny Vaught that if a better offer is made "we certainly will investigate it."

Mississippi signed for the Delta Bowl last Summer at a time when the team was figured to finish eighth or ninth in the Southeastern Conference standings.

But, paced by Charley Conerly, the nation's leading passer, and Barney Poole, ace receiving end, the Rebels have won six top-flight games and bowed only to Vanderbilt and Arkansas in close squeaks.

A spectacular offensive outfit, they are regarded as one of the best drawing cards in the south.

Jimmy Burns, Sports Editor of the Miami Herald, wrote that "contrary to popular belief, Mississippi is available for our New Year's Day game." He added that Ole Miss would be "receptive" to an Orange Bowl bid.

Vaught said he believes Mississippi might be released if a better bowl offer than the Delta's came along.

Dewey, head of the sponsoring Amvets, said "I am certain Ole Miss will play here in our bowl."

Among the teams being considered to furnish Ole Miss opposition are Rice, University of Virginia and Missouri.

Coach Bob Smith said he would stress defensive operations almost exclusively for the remainder of this week.

Atlanta Cagers Lose, 48-46; Game Terminates in Brawl

CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 12—Chattanooga's Majors snapped Atlanta's seven-game winning streak in the Professional Basketball League of America here Wednesday night when they eked out a 48-46 decision.

The game ended with the referee calling six straight technicals fouls on Coulby Gunther, the Atlanta player-coach, who had continuously protested the officiating the last five minutes of the game. Since only one second remained when the string of fouls was called on Gunther, the Chattanooga team elected to take the ball out of bounds following each foul. The game finally ended when Mike McCarren, of Atlanta, grabbed the ball from the Chattanooga man out-of-bounds and drop-kicked it into the air.

A general brawl broke out between the two teams following this incident and the police had to take a hand. Atlanta defeated Chattanooga in Atlanta Tuesday night, 65-50, but bad blood was created as a result of a fight between Dan Kirkland, of the Majors, and Harry Miller, of Atlanta.

Atlanta Cage Pros To Play Kansas City

Coach Coulby Gunther's fast-stepping Atlanta professional cage team will make its fourth home stand and the second of the week against the strong Kansas City five at 8 o'clock tonight at Sports Arena.

The Atlantan opened the week's play by defeating Chattanooga, 65-50 Tuesday night and then moved up to the Lookout stronghold for a return go Wednesday night.

Tuesday's victory was the seventh straight for the Gunthermen in Professional Basketball League of America competition.

In practically all these games, Coach Gunther, a former St. John's University All-America player, has paced the attack. He averaged 20 points per game for six straight starts, but was held to 13 Tuesday night and slumped to a shade better than 19 per game. His total now stands at 136.

There will be two preliminaries on tonight's card, the first of which will get under way at 6:45 o'clock.

A crowd estimated at more than 500 saw the dogs off on the cast at daybreak. The start was made from the Pulaski County fairgrounds, where the more than 300 participating dogs are quartered. Between 250 and 300 foxhunters are here for the trials, which will continue through Thursday.

Kramer, Pails Quit Amateurs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jack Kramer, twice National Amateur singles tennis champion, and hero in America's last two Davis Cup matches with Australia, Wednesday joined the professional ranks at an annual salary of $50,000, largest contract ever offered a tennis star.

Meanwhile in Sydney, Australia, it was announced that Dinny Pails, Australia's No. 1 tennis player, was flying to America Wednesday to turn professional.

The announcement of Kramer's decision to turn professional was made by Jack Harris, promoter of tennis ventures, in Chicago.

Kramer will team up with Bobby Riggs, professional champion, on a tour opening in New York's Madison Square Garden, Dec. 26. They will engage in 50 to 60 matches in America's principal cities and also will invade South Africa, where Harris took Don Budge and Riggs on a highly profitable venture last year, and South America, a lucrative field for touring American tennis stars.

Kramer, whose home is Montebello, Calif., is rated as having the greatest drawing name in tennis.

Harris said Kramer's earnings might exceed $50,000 a year since his contract also provides for a percentage agreement.

Harris' tennis troup may be expanded to include Dinny Pails, Australia's amateur champion and Davis Cup player, and Pancho Segura, Ecuadorian star. Pails left for the United States by plane Wednesday to open negotiations with Harris, who said he probably would meet Pails in San Francisco, or later in Chicago.

Harris said that he had talked with Pails, but they have had some differences over a contract and they will need to meet before Pails' demands can be settled. Harris indicated that if Segura did not join his venture, the fourth player probably would be Frankie Parker, former national singles champion.

Pails was sped on his way by a sharp blast from one of Australia's leading amateur officials.

"Australia amateur tennis is well rid of him," said Brian Fuller, President of the New South Wales Association. "All tennis administrators feel the same about Pails—they are sick of him.

"I think this is just another act of discourtesy on his part. Pails was chosen to play in an interstate match starting next Wednesday. He also was to have played in the New South Wales Championship next week. He must have known Wednesday morning at the latest that he was going."

Regents Alert Committee For Construction Program

By M. L. ST. JOHN

The Board of Regents Wednesday appointed a "stand-by" committee ready to launch a building program immediately in the University System in event Acting Gov. Thompson grants a recent request for $3,000,000 additional funds.

The Board notified all units of the System that they could expect no additional grants, beyond present allocations for the year, unless the Budget Bureau makes more funds available to the Regents.

"For practical purposes we may consider that no unallocated funds remain available, and no further requests for additional funds can be entertained," Chairman Pope Brock said, after the Board allocated approximately $20,000 to three colleges.

Brock told the Board that Acting Gov. Thompson is sympathetic toward the request for more funds, and Brock anticipates the Budget Bureau will be able to find additional funds within the near future.

The committee which has been authorized to "stand by" to discuss building needs with the Budget Commission is the same group which recently presented the request to Thompson. It is a combination of the Board's Finance and Building Committees.

This group has the power to designate where the new funds will be spent. The Board has outlined a building program costing $35,000,000. Recently it selected projects for priority costing approximately $5,000,000. This list would have to be pared down further if the Budget Bureau gave less than this amount.

Plans of Vice Chancellor Harry Brown to develop an agricultural research program at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture in Athens were disclosed when Brown asked the Board to lease additional farm land.

"We hope to develop a research program at Athens in order to give the students the benefit of it right on the campus," Brown said. "This would in no way de-emphasize the research programs being done at the Experiment Station, near Griffin, or at the Coastal Plains Experiment Station at Tifton."

The Board delayed leasing 300 acres of farm land because it felt the price of $3,600 annually was too high.

The Board appropriated $9,850 to the University of Georgia Division of Extension to take care of additional expenses for teaching centers at Columbus, Gainesville, and Waycross; $8,600 to make repairs on building at the Georgia State College at Savannah; $1,200 for sewerage at Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, and $1,200 for purchase of a pick-up truck at Abraham Baldwin College.

It approved the investment of $39,000 in University of Georgia trust funds in construction of six faculty homes at the North Georgia College at Dahlonega, if the University wished to invest these funds.

It approved plans of the University of Georgia to spend $30,000 on improving its Law Library, and $5,000 for working plans and specifications for an addition to the Landscape Architecture Building.

Naming of the new Textile Building at Georgia Tech in honor of Harrison Hightower was approved.

Three retired deans of the University of Georgia—Dr. L. L. Hendren, Dr. R. P. Stephens, and Dr. R. P. Brooks—were named "deans emeritus."

The Regents commended the work of the Volunteer Religious Association at the University of Georgia, and said they would support the organization of similar organizations on other campuses in the System.

UN Condemns Franco Reign; U. S. Abstains

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 12—(UP)—The United Nations Political Committee, overriding American objections, Wednesday voted a fresh condemnation of Franco Spain.

The entire resolution was passed, 29 to six, with 20 countries, including the United States, abstaining. This was the two-thirds majority needed to assure final passage in the full General Assembly.

The clause renewing the call for withdrawal of top diplomats from Madrid passed, 30 to 14, with 11 abstaining and the United States voting "no." All the other members of the Big Five—Russia, France, China and Great Britain—voted "yes."

On the clause to prod the Security Council into possible action, the vote was 37 to six, with 12 abstaining. This time, all the Big Five voted "yes." On the resolution as a whole, all big powers except the United States voted "yes."

Other nations arguing against the resolution echoed a fear that any action against Franco would rally the Spanish people to his defense, and prolong his reign.

The resolution, in effect, was a sharp condemnation of Argentina, the only nation to flout last year's resolution calling for the withdrawal of ambassadors and ministers. Argentina, instead of withdrawing its ambassador, assigned a new one.

Atomic Savant Urges Money War on Cancer

Millions or even billions of dollars wisely spent in cancer investigation would be more than justified, an atomic energy scientist told the Georgia Division of the American Cancer Society here Wednesday night.

"Each one of the 17 million persons in the United States now living who will die of cancer would, I am sure, gladly contribute up to $100, if able, for a reasonable chance of adding to his length of life," Paul C. Aebersold told the meeting.

"The sum of $1,700,000,000 which this would raise seems enormous," he said. "However, each cancer patient eventually loses in income or pays for treatment more than $100, usually several hundred or several thousand dollars. The economic loss to society when totaled over all the potential cancer cases amounts to billions of dollars. No figure can be set on the human loss to society."

The Chief of the Isotopes Division, Oak Ridge Operations of the Atomic Energy Commission, added: "The amount of the push and speed with which the war on cancer can be pursued depends on public awareness, education, cooperation and financial support. Medical men and researchers will follow up the public's demands."

Even with medical science's present incomplete knowledge of the detection and cure of cancer, between 13,000 and 20,000 of the 40,000 Atlantans now doomed to die of cancer could be saved by proper medical checkups once a year or oftener, Aebersold told the group.

Development of radioisotopes to trace the complicated processes of the human body will rank, he said, with the great extension of perception gained through the development of the microscope.

STRESS MILITARY TRAINING—Col. Forrest F. Watson, left, National Commander of the Military Order of World Wars, confers with Maj. Gen. Leland S. Hobbs, Deputy Commanding General of the Third Army, center, and Capt. Jackson Dick, Atlanta Commander of MOWW, on immediate necessity for universal military training.

No. 3 No 'Push Button' War, Predicts MOWW Commander

Col. Forrest F. Watson, National Commander of the Military Order of World Wars, Wednesday emphasized the importance of universal military training when he said "trained soldiers, not push buttons," will be the deciding factor in the next world war.

The retired Air Corps veteran of combat service in the Pacific Theater minimized the "switchboard" warefare when he told a group at a meeting of the Atlanta Chapter that our military forces must take into consideration "the possibility of the United States joining in the outlawing of atomic warfare."

"Our military and naval commanders teamed with science," he said, "to develop these new arms. We must depend on that team to fit these new and devastating powers into our program.

"We must keep ahead in knowledge and application of new forces. Were it not for our present leadership in knowledge and manufacture of the atomic bomb, it is possible, if not probable, that we would now be locked in another death struggle."

Cmdr. Watson said Russia is "a real threat to peace." But he expressed confidence in the work of the United Nations and its efforts to work and live with this power in peace.

He made an unscheduled appearance before the Atlanta group to hear an address by Maj. Gen. Leland S. Hobbs, Deputy Commanding General of the Third Army, on universal military training.

SUICIDE, PARENTS FEAR

Self-Blinded Youth Jumps Bail on U. S. Theft Charges

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12—(UP)—A youth who blinded himself in prison so he would not be tempted to commit forgery again has jumped bail on mail theft charges amid belief he committed suicide, a U. S. attorney revealed Wednesday.

The attorney, Russell L. Hiller, told Federal Judge James P. McGranery that Jerome Poster, 24, disappeared from his home last Friday. He requested that a bench warrant be issued for the arrest of the youth, now object of a nation-wide Government search.

Hiller said Poster vanished during the absence of his parents, who expressed fears their son may have committed suicide. He quoted them that Poster was "very morose, melancholy and emotionally disturbed" since the prison incident.

Poster's counsel, Raymond P. Alexander, said the youth stuck the needle-point of a hypodermic syringe into his eyeballs while in Holmesburg County Prison last June 8. He said Poster was totally blinded in his right eye and had only 20 percent vision in the left. However, prison authorities said Poster's sight was restored completely by treatment.

The youth, under Federal indictment on charges of stealing and forging checks amounting to $13,000, was released in $500 bail last Oct. 8 on the condition he would submit to psychiatric and eye examinations under Government direction. Hiller said doctors had been designated and the parents notified to make appointments.

The bail was set after a medical officer of the U. S. Public Health Service reported the former high school honor student apparently was blind in both eyes. Poster had been taken into Federal custody after completion of his sentence at Holmesburg.

Senate Probe Looms On Meyers Bond Deals

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(INS)—A Senate probe of bond dealings by Bennett Meyers loomed Wednesday after he testified he speculated in $4,000,000 worth of war bonds on advice of then Treasury Sec. Morgenthau and Marriner Eccles that he "couldn't go wrong."

Morgenthau, in New York, immediately denounced the testimony of Meyers, a retired major general, as an "outright lie."

A spokesman for Eccles, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, declared the transaction described by Meyers was "just the sort of speculation in Government bonds that the Treasury Department and all interested agencies made every affort to prevent during the war."

Meyers, a balding, dark-eyed man, now receiving a $461 monthly Army pension, described his speculations in bonds while in the Air Forces during the Senate War Investigating Committee inquiry into Howard Hughes' warplane contracts. He said on one deal he made $90,000.

Chairman Ferguson, Republican, Michigan, declared: "We intend to go into this bond deal later."

Meyers also disclosed that in 1940 he bought $1,000 worth of Republic Aviation stock in his name for Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, former Deputy Air Force Commander now employed by Hughes. Republic was then building the Thunderbolt fighter, later to gain fame in European fighting.

The General, who denied that his conduct in the Army had anything to do with his retirement, disclosed his bond dealings while testifying that Hughes offered him $250,000 to buy securities.

Hughes has disputed this, claiming Meyers asked him for $200,000 to buy bonds on margin, at a time when the General was passing on a war contract for Hughes planes.

Meyers testified he told Neil McCarthy, a former Hughes company official, that he contemplated borrowing money at one percent interest and buying bonds on 99 percent credit that would bear two percent interest. He said he told McCarthy this would net him one percent.

Ferguson: "You could double your money in a year?"

Meyers: "Correct."

Newton Baiter Carried Bodily From Baptist Convention Hall

AMARILLO, Texas, Nov. 12—(AP)—A Fort Worth pastor was carried bodily from the floor of the Baptist convention here Wednesday when he tried to challenge the featured speaker of the morning.

Rev. William Fraser, member of Dr. Frank Norris' Fundamentalist Church of Fort Worth, got to his feet from his front row seat in the convention hall when Dr. Louie D. Newton, Atlanta, Ga., President of the Southern Baptist Convention, was introduced by Dr. Wallace Bassett, Dallas, President of the General Convention.

"I would like to challenge Dr. Newton and ask him . . ." Fraser began.

He was cut short by Dr. Bassett, who pointed a gavel at him.

"You're not going to ask Dr. Newton anything," Dr. Bassett said.

"I want to raise a protest as high as Heaven . . ." Fraser continued.

Dr. Norris, sitting nearby among reporters in the orchestra pit, grinned broadly and stood up.

The crowd began to boo loudly. Several stamped their feet. Someone began a hymn, and the audience joined in.

A number of Baptist pastors and laymen advanced on Fraser.

"Are you going peacefully?" one of them asked.

Fraser continued shouting until he noticed the men were serious. He crouched in the orchestra pit, his face red and flushed.

Six men picked him up bodily and carried him out of the hall. Norris continued to smile.

"This is the worst thing they ever did," Dr. Norris told a reporter.

The hall quieted down. Five minutes later, Fraser returned to the hall and sat down quietly.

Refuses To Say Husband Rushed Her With Truck

BRIDGEND, Wales, Nov. 12—(UP)—The married life of the Harcombe family was peaceful Wednesday, although Kenneth Harcombe was in jail accused of trying to run over his 22-year-old wife with a truck.

Three times Tuesday the Bridgend Court magistrates tried to induce Mrs. Harcombe to describe the grim scene in which her husband allegedly chased her up a sidewalk with a truck. According to the charge, the truck struck a wall and Mrs. Harcombe collapsed on the bumper and spent several days in the hospital.

The prosecution said she had left her husband because of repeated quarrels.

However she refused to testify and was ordered to prison on contempt charges. Kenneth, who pleaded not guilty, was committed for trial.

Mrs. Harcombe burst into tears and pleaded with the bench: "Give my husband another chance."

As she was being led out her husband shouted: "Don't take her away. I love her. This has nothing on the gestapo.

Taken aback, the magistrates suddenly changed their minds and ordered Mrs. Harcombe to testify at the trial instead of being sent to jail.

And the unpredictable Harconbes rushed into each other's arms.

Taxicab Driver Saves Fare $400

R. P. Kirk, a Yellow Cab driver, used his noggin Wednesday and saved Mrs. W. T. Christian $400.

Mrs. Christian, of Miami, visiting in Atlanta, called a taxi to take her, with her to suitcases, to a friend's home on Parkway Drive.

At the address of her friend she got out of the cab and went inside to get help to move the suitcases.

While she was inside a middle-aged couple came out, picked up the luggage and told Kirk to take it to Georgia Avenue and Pryor Street. When Kirk said the luggage wasn't theirs, they said to go anyway.

Kirk drove around until he saw Detectives Frank Lawson and W. A. Jones near the Ansley Hotel.

The suitcases valued with their contents at $400, were retrieved, and the couple, who gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Kilgore, of 140 Georgia Avenue, were locked up on a charge of suspicion of larceny.

Mr. Harris, a native of Suwanee, was owner and operator of 11 restaurants in the downtown district of Atlanta. Most of his restaurants were located in large office buildings, including establishments in the Rhodes-Haverty Building, the Hurt Building, the Trust Company of Georgia, the City Hall, the Citizens & Southern National Bank Building and others.

He built what possibly is the City's largest chain of eating places from a single restaurant which he opened in the Trust Company of Georgia Building some 25 years ago. And, at the time of his death, he still was operating his original restaurant in the same location.

Mr. Harris was a member of the Gate City Lodge No. 2, F. & A. M., and the Atlanta Restaurant Association. He also was a member of St. Mark Methodish church.

Baptist 'Rules' Change To Be Urged Next Year

By THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Political maneuvering seeking revision of the Georgia Baptist Convention Constitution, particularly with reference to Executive Committee membership, is expected during the next 12 months.

Wednesday's session of the Georgia Baptist Convention was enlivened by announcements made by two clerical members that, a year hence, formal motion would be introduced and appeal made for desired changes. The Rev. W. M. Marshall, Pastor of the Atlanta Oakland City Baptist Church, and the Rev. L. B. Sauls, Pastor of the Atlanta Confederate Avenue Baptist Church, served notice to this effect.

Instances of dissatisfaction regarding membership on the Executive Committee were cited, where membership is said to be continued in five-year terms almost indefinitely in some cases.

It was pointed out to the Convention that scores of able and capable men were denied controlling voice in the denomination's policy from year to year, while others continued in Committee membership term after term. There is a call for a new deal, it was stated.

Dr. Arthur Jackson, Executive Secretary of the Georgia Baptist Foundation and Endowment Fund, Wednesday pled with the Convention for a $25,000,000 endowment fund for the six Georgia Baptist schools sponsored by the Convention so that each of the 2,400 students in those schools might have a $20,000 endowment back of him, to guarantee aid in getting an education for leadership.

Dr. Jackson stated that the endowment fund now was $3,273,776, showing an increase of $1,826,104. The increase this year amounts to $123,953.65. In addition to the increase in the endowment fund, there has been added $130,142 for building purposes, and $29,014 for other capital assets, making a total increase of capital assets this year of $283,110.83.

Dr. C. L. Cutts, President of the Truett-McConnell Junior College, at Cleveland, known as the baby school of the Convention, won a big place in the hearts of Convention attendants. In addition to showing that the year-old college has a net worth of $170,587.80, Dr. Cutts presented a personnel exhibit of the type of young people enrolled there. Four girls appeared on the rostrum, and sang their way into every heart within hearing. The girls were Peggy Joe Rober, of Gainesville; Betty Sue Hawkins, of Gainesville; Billy McDonald, of Cleveland, and Mary Kate Wellborn, of Royston.

Shortly after the Christmas holidays a special drive in Atlanta will be made in behalf of the Truett-McConnell College, with expectation of realizing $200,000.

Climax of social functions for Wednesday came at noon, when 216 Baptist ministers gathered at the Ansley Hotel for the Mercer Ministerial Alumni Association luncheon. Dr. J. C. Wilkerson was speaker for the occasion. Officers elected by the Alumnia Association for the coming year are S. S. Garrison, of Savannah, President; T. J. Holmes, of Manchester, Vice President; H. Ihley, of Elberton, Secretary, and E. A. Kilgore, of Greensboro, Treasurer. Musical numbers and short talks were other features of the hour.

"THEY'RE NOT THE ONES!"—William "Pop" Schneider, left, 86-year-old foundry worker, traveled 2,500 miles to Atlanta to show his son, Arthur Schneider, right, the bronze doors he made for Henry Grady's vault. Upon visiting the vault of the famed editor at West View Cemetery Wednesday, he said the ornamental iron doors were not the ones he had made at the foundry at Georgia Tech 57 years ago. No trace of "his" doors had been found.

OLD FOUNDRYMAN GETS JOLT

Doors on Grady Tomb Not 'His,' Pop Says

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

William "Pop" Schneider, a gnomish but spry little man of 86 years, had told his children and grandchildren countless times about the handsome bronze doors he had made for Henry Grady's tomb back in 1890.

"They were fine paneled doors," he liked to recall. "Each had a lion's head right in the middle. I made them when I worked in the Georgia Tech foundry."

Thursday the old man's blue eyes were bright and his spirits were soaring as he arrived in Atlanta with his son after a 2,500-mile journey made expressly "to show my boy what a good job I had done."

"Pop" walked eagerly toward the big marble vault under the spreading popular tree in West View Cemetery, where lie the mortal remains of The Constitution's famed editor and Georgia's great statesman.

He paused, squinted, then shook his head sadly.

"Gash darn," was all he could say.

The old man moved a little closer, examined the ornamental iron doors and turned finally to his son, Arthur Schneider, with whom he has a foundry business in Denver, Colo.

"They're not the ones, Art," he said.

"Pop" Schneider then began to reason as to why his doors had been changed. He said maybe "they" found the closed bronze doors didn't give enough ventilation and replaced them with the open iron doors. He ambled over to neighboring vaults to see if "his" doors were in use elsewhere.

Arthur Schneider was disappointed mostly because his father was disappointed. He said they probably would have to visit every vault in Atlanta now to see if they could find the doors which "Pop" said were made for Henry Grady's tomb.

"Pop" who left Atlanta more than a half a century ago, was very positive about making the doors at the Georgia Tech foundry, which he said burned in 1891. He said the foundry was at first reluctant to take the job since the doors were to be larger than any they had made before.

Cemetery authorities could not explain the "mystery" of the missing doors—if they were missing. They pointed out that Henry Grady died at the age of 39 in 1889. His body, they said, was first placed in a temporary receiving vault at Oakland Cemetery until the big marble vault at West View was ready in 1892. Old-timers at West View said the iron doors had been on Henry Grady's vault as long as they could remember.

Hennry Grady's daughter, Mrs. E. R. Black, and his grandson, Henry W. Grady, both of Atlanta, have no recollection of any other doors on the vault. Neither was absolutely sure, however, that there had been no others.

But "Pop" was adamant. He knew he made bronze doors for the vault. And he wants to know where they are.

'Double Tree Income,' Speaker Urges State

By BILL BORING

The Keep Georgia Green program was launched here Wednesday in a talking marathon, the like of which hasn't been seen (or rather heard) since Huey Long's filibustering days in the U. S. Senate.

Nineteen principal speakers took the floor in one of the most dazzling displays of Southern oratory since the days of Henry Grady. They spent four hours praising the tree, that wonderful, wonderful thing that grows. They used every adjective in Webster's book, it seemed, and some of them grew so enthusiastic they even took credit for the very growth of the tree itself.

This tendency finally caused Kirk Sutlive, the meeting's Chairman and President of the Georgia Forestry Association, to speak in the manner of Joyce Kilmer.

"Let us not forget," he said, "that only God can make a tree."

But pardon their enthusiasm, for the tree is, as the speakers pointed out, a wonderful friend of the Georgian. And the forests are our heritage, to be used rather than abused; and it is the purpose of the Keep Georgia Green movement to point this out.

Acting Gov. Thompson, who called the meeting, said that trees bring in $275,000,000 in income to the State each year, three times the dollars cotton brings in.

But another speaker pointed out that the State's forests, with proper protection from fire and, through scientific tree farming, could mean twice as much income.

"For example," one speaker pointed out, "the State is losing $50,000,000 a year in forest fires that could be prevented."

To produce more trees, Thompson proposed another State nursery, asking the group as one of its first projects to find a suitable site for it. He said Georgia is now planting 34,000,000 seedlings a year; that it should be increased to 40,000,000.

The speakers brought out these facts about Georgia trees: 120,000 persons are directly employed in forest work; there are 25,000,000 acres of trees in the State; trees yield $11 per acre income, but the State spends only a half cent an acre in maintaining them; 70 percent of Georgia's forested area is in the hands of small property owners; Georgia produces 50 percent of the world's naval stores; Georgia produces five percent of the nation's lumber; Georgia ranks second only to Oregon in natural timber resources; 80,000 Georgians are dependent upon gum naval stores for a livelihood; gum naval stores yield $26,000,000 a year in income and this could be tripled with adequate merchandising of the product.

Lilybet's Wedding-Gown Publicity Precipitates Royal Wrath, Tears

LONDON, Nov. 12—(INS)—There was thunder on the right and left as well as confusion and tears in Buckingham Palace Wednesday.

And it all was occasioned by premature publication in London newspapers of a sketch and description of the wedding gown Princess Elizabeth will wear when she is married to Lt. Philip Mountbatten Thursday.

King George and Queen Elizabeth were reported to be angry over the publication—Buckingham Palace had imposed a ban until the day of the wedding—and the Princess herself was said to be in tears over the disclosures.

But privileged and trusted persons who have had sketches of the gown and its description in their hands for days would not admit Wednesday night that the drawing appearing in the London Daily Mail and the description published by the London Evening Standard were authentic.

According to the Standard, the gown is made of white slipper satin, cut on classic lines and embroidered lavishly. It has a "sweetheart" neckline, long tight sleeves with a fitted bodice at the waist, billowing to a full skirt trailing to the ground in back.

Bands of flowers are embroidered on the skirt in crystals, pearls, thread and tulle. The bodice is pointed at the waistline, and the cuffs of the sleeves are outlined in embroidery similar to that of the skirt.

The gown has a fan-shaped train of white silk and tulle five yards long, descending from the shoulders. The train is embroidered in the same manner as the dress, but with a design of flowers and wheat-sheaves.

The Standard said the Princess' veil of white tulle would be held in place by a diamond tiara. Her shoes have high heels, sling backs and open toes, and with a pearl-studded silver buckle on each.

The Daily Mail absolved itself from violation of the ban by printing under sketches of the Princess' gowns and the bridesmaids' frocks a caption that read in part:

"The Rome Newspaper Giornale D'Italia on Monday published this sketch claiming to be a preview of Princess Elizabeth's wedding dress."

Later in the afternoon the Evening Stanrard published its description without comment.

The first breach in the wall of secrecy surrounding the magnificent wedding gown of lustrous white satin was made some weeks ago when the Standard published a picture of the dress material.

Wednesday's developments marked a complete debacle, leaving the King and Queen checkmated and angry and their daughter tearful.

Until Wednesday the wedding dress had been the Empire's most closely and sentimentally guarded secret.

LONDON, Nov. 12—(AP)—Strike pickets were cleared from the entrance of the Savoy Hotel Wednesday night just before Princess Elizabeth arrived to attend a ball there.

School Editors Will Get Facts To War on TB

Editorial staff members of high school newspapers in Atlanta, Decatur and Fulton and DeKalb Counties will meet at 3 p. m. today at the Academy of Medicine under the auspices of the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, opening the ninth Scholastic Press Project on tuberculosis topics.

John Griffin, Chairman of the School Health Committee of the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, and Dr. C. C. Aven, chest specialist, will be among the speakers. There will be a panel discussion by a group of school editors on "The Role of the Tuberculosis Association in a Community Health Program and How My School Can Help Prevent Tuberculosis."

Reds Seize Marseille City Hall

MARSEILLE, Nov. 12—(INS)—One Communist was killed and approximately 40 persons were wounded in day-long fighting in which 7,000 Communists seized the City Hall in Marseille and ousted the elected De Gaullists.

They held the building against 3,000 policemen for hours before ejection.

A night club owner shot and killed the Communist Wednesday night when a mob sacked eight night clubs, smashing furniture, windows, mirrors and bottles. Three other Communists were critically wounded.

Police chiefs conferred Wednesday night on security plans, fearful of a miniature civil war breaking out in France's second city. Feeling was running high.

The Communists ripped down the American and British flags from the City Hall, where they had been hung as part of Tuesday's Armistice Day ceremony, and called on the people to:

"Unite to obtain a settlement conforming to the interests of the country and defense of the Republic."

This was the first overt manifestation perhaps of the recent nationwide Communist call for formation of "Committees of Defense" to resist the De Gaullist election victory—a call interpreted by some as preparation for a civil war in France.

The Communists used bricks and stones to discourage attempts to evict them after they in turn had evicted the Mayor and City Councillors elected they in on the Gaullist ticket.

The Communist-led Trade Union Central Committee announced a general strike to begin Thursday.

Metal workers, dockers, seamen and others already have quit work.

Isolated brawls continued Wednesday night.

ROME, Nov. 12—(INS)—Two persons were killed and at least nine wounded Wednesday in Communist-Rightest street fighting in Milan, where a bombing and flash strike also occurred.

SINGS 'AH' IN 'AH, SWEET MYSTERY OF LIFE'

Sad-Eyed Auer Set To Bow-Wow Ansley Roof

Call of Love. Flirting. Fear. Doubt.

Constitution Staff Photo—Ryan Sanders

MISCHA AUER DEMONSTRATES FOUR EASY WAYS TO ACTING SUCCESS.

By BILL BORING.

There's one thing certain about Mischa Auer. He ain't no fashion plate.

The light brown suit he was wearing as he arrived in Atlanta Wednesday fit him like it was hanging from a peg of a hall tree.

He maintains his sad-brown eyes make him resemble a great dane. "In fact," says Auer, "I used to have one and everybody was getting us mixed up."

But a sad expression—and Auer is never without one—is in keeping with the comic roles he plays.

"The root of all comedy," he says, "is frustration."

As soon as Auer got to town he flung himself immediately into two gruelling hours of rehearsal for his spot on the Ansley Rainbow Roof show.

Auer sings a duet with his partner, Allegra. Auer sings the "who" in "Who Stole My Hart Away" and the "Ah" in "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." Allegra sings all the rest.

"What a killing routine!" says Auer.

Auer came to town with some radical ideas about Hollywood. He says he likes the movie capital because "you can get to work in half an hour and it is a good place to live a quiet life raising chickens, cows and children."

"Most movie people go to bed early on week nights, but like most all other Americans step out on Saturday nights," he says.

Born in Russia, Auer came to America when he was 14 as a refugee from the Soviet Government. He has a cultural background, schooled in the arts. He is a very accomplished pianist and one of his routines in the Rainbow Roof show will be the playing of a classical composition, not with his fingers, but by rolling grapefruit over the keyboard.

Only Auer and Chico Marx have ever mastered this trick.

Cotton Closes Firm In New York Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Cotton futures closed unchanged to $1.05 a bale higher in moderately active dealings today. Mills covered heavily against textile sales in early dealings and ran the market to gains of almost $1 a bale with commission houses also buyers. Late profit-taking and hedging brought moderate recessions, but renewed covering firmed the market towards the close.

An important influence was the Administration's proposal for $38,000,000 cotton purchases for Europe as a stop-gap measure which figures better than 200,000 bales at current prices.

Italy, it was said, might also obtain credits through other sources for $15,000,000 cotton purchases.

The tight supply situation developing in the domestic market was further pointed out by the Department of Agriculture reports on diminishing world cotton stocks. It said that world stocks on July 31, 1947, were off 28 percent from the previous season and 37 percent under the peak stocks of 1945. Consumption was reported as exceeding production with the likelihood of a further 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 bales decline in world stocks for the current year.

Stocks Suffer Sharpest Decline For the Month

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Pivotal industrial shares sagged in the final hour of today's stock market, carrying average prices to their lowest since Sept. 30.

Favorable dividend and earnings news was ignored and the unfavorable emphasized, as early resistance by some sections of the list was followed by a downward drift. Many issues closed at their lows for the day with losses of fractions to around 2 points.

The late activity lifted total transactions, bolstered by accumulation of orders over yesterday's Armistice Day recess, to 900,000 shares compared with 720,000 Monday.

In its sharpest decline so far this month, the Associated Press 60-stock composite dipped .5 of a point to 64.7. Of 1,003 issues registering 450 retreated and 335 advanced.

Commission houses attributed market pessimism to doubts over maintenance of profit margins and to uncertainty over anti-inflation moves by the special Congressional session. Added tax selling was reported. Some bidding was credited to belief a technical recovery was near.

Depressed in the Curb were Electric Bond & Share, Salt Dome Oil, Root Petroleum and Carr-Consolidated Biscuit. Forward were Logansport Distilling, Middle West Corporation and Kaiser-Frazer.

Bonds were narrow.

DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—The cotton textile market was quiet today, with selling houses still appraising price schedules, following the recent nine percent wage increase to textile workers and the continued rise in raw cotton prices. Most houses have withdrawn all offerings for the third quarter of next year and buyers were not pressing for goods that far off. It was generally expected that prices on most constructions will move higher, possibly one cent a yard on print cloths. Wool goods were quiet, with the trade generally expecting another rise in prices on Fall lines next year due to the higher operating costs being felt by mills. Rayon goods were in strong demand, with offerings lgiht.

SUGAR FUTURES

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Domestic sugar futures today were unchanged as light buying by Wall Street houses met producer selling. Spot raw sugar was quiet. Demand for refined was slower on packaged goods, but there was a fair demand from industrial users. Domestic sugar futures No. 5, closed 3 to 4 lower, sales 118 contracts.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY COMPANY
INVITATION FOR BIDS.

The undersigned, as Trustee of the property of Central of Georgia Railway Company, hereby invites bids for the lowest interest rate at which bidders will provide funds not exceeding $475,175.00 for financing approximately 80% of the cost, under a conditional sale of contract of the following railroad equipment:

Four (4) new 1,500 H. P. Diesel-electric Freight Road Locomotive "A" Units, numbered 901, 902, 903 and 904. These locomotives are being built by General Motors Corporation (Electro-Motive Division) and are expected to be delivered during December 1947.

Said equipment will be sold to the undersigned under a conditional sale contract, entered into between him and the Manufacturer of such equipment, under the terms of which the title to said equipment is reserved in the Manufacturer or its assignee until the full purchase price and all interest thereon is paid in full.

At least Twenty (20%) percent of the purchase price of this equipment will be paid in cash by the undersigned. Balance of purchase price, not exceeding $475,175.00, is to be furnished by the successful bidder hereunder. Amount furnished by such bidder wil be payable in forty (40) equal quarterly installments, payable as hereinafter provided. Anticipatory payments of installments of principal may be made on any quarterly payment date, such payments to apply to such installments in inverse order of maturity.

The successful bidder will become the assignee of the Manufacturer of said conditional sale contract under an assignment agreement which will

(1) Assign and transfer to the assignee all of the right, title and interest of the Manufacturer in the conditional sale contract, as well as the equipment covered thereby, and entitle the assignee to receive the deferred paymnts of principal as well as interest as provided in said conditional sale contract; and

(2) Require the assignee to pay to the Manufacturer the excess of the price of each unit of equipment over the amount paid by the Trustee to the Manufacturer, together with any interest due thereon, provided, however, that this amount to be paid by the assignee to the Manufacturer shall not exceed the amount shown in the first paragraph of this invitation.

First deferred installment of purchase price is payable three months from the first day of the first month following the month in which the last unit of equipment covered by said conditional sale contract is accepted.

Interest on unpaid installments of purchase price runs from date of acceptance of each unit until the first day of the first month following the month in which the last unit covered by the conditional sale contract is accepted and thereafter interest will be payable quarterly, as each quarterly installment of principal becomes due, on the balance of the purchase price of this equipment.

There is a covenant in said conditional sale contract to the effect that upon the termination of the Trusteeship of Central of Georgia Railway, the reorganized corporation or a successor trustee or trustees which succeed to seventy-five (75) per cent of the owned lines of the Railway Company at the termination of the Tsusteeship shall be substituted for and in the place of the undersigned and upon such corporation or trustee or trustees being so substituted and assuming all of the obligations and covenants of the undersigned under said conditional sale contract the undersigned shall stand discharged therefrom.

Bid pursuant to this invitation must be made in duplicate on forms furnished by the undersigned and shall be addressed and delivered to the undersigned before 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, November 28, 1947, at his office, No. 233 West Broad Street, Savannah, Georgia.

Bids are to be submitted in conformity with the Clayton Anti-Trust Act and the regulations promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission pursuant to said Act, and shall be enclosed in a plain envelope, securely sealed, bearing no indication of the name of the bidder or the rate of interest bid and marked "Bid under proposed Contract No. 7." No bid will be received unless it states the name and address of the bidder and, if the bidder be a corporation, the names and addresses of the Officers, Directors, and General Manager thereof and of the purchasing or selling officer or agent, and, if the bidder is a firm, partnership, or association, the names and addresses of each member thereof and of the manager, purchasing or selling officer or agent.

Bids will be opened immediately after noon, Eastern Standard Time, November 28, 1947, by the undersigned or J. D. McCartney, his Assistant or such other person as may be authorized to do so by the undersigned in writing. Bidders or their representatives may be present at the opening of bids and may examine all bids received.

If a syndicate submits a bid the bid should disclose the name of the member of such syndicate with whom the undersigned is authorized to deal in the event such bid is accepted.

Acceptance of the successful bid endorsed on one copy thereof will be mailed or delivered to the successful bidder not later than noon, Eastern Standard Time, on December 1, 1947, and this will constitute the contract between the undersigned and the successful bidder.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. If two or more bidders bid the same rate, the successful bidder may be chosen by lot in such manner as the undersigned in his discretion may determine.

Prospective bidders may obtain forms for bids, together with copies of the conditional sale contract and assignment, by applying to the undersigned, No. 233 West Broad Street, Savannah, Georgia.

Undersigned has been authorized to invite these bids by orders of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Georgia, Savannah Division, in the proceedings for the reorganization of a railroad, in the matter of Central of Georgia Railway Company, Debtor, No. 4829.

In the event all of the equipment is not delivered by March 1, 1948, in accordance with the terms of said conditional sale contract the bid of the successful bidder may be withdrawn and such bidder released of further liability thereunder.

An opinion as to the validity of the conditional sale contract and assignment agreement will be furnished by Messrs. Lawton and Cunningham, Attorneys, Savannah, Georgia, to the successful bidder.

Savannah, Georgia, November 10, 1947.

Wheat Nears $3, All Other Grains Advance in Price

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 — (AP) — Grains staged a brisk upturn on the Board of Trade today, the December wheat contract closely approaching the $3 mark for the first time in two weeks.

Trade reports of a pickup in domestic flour business, a considerable expansion in the Government's purchases of cash wheat and the continued poor outlook for the 1948 crop combined to cause the advance. Despite the strength, turnover was not large.

December wheat reached $2.99½ at the final bell. In the spot market, No. 2 Norrthern spring wheat sold for $3.02¼.

Wheat ended 2½-4¾ cents higher, December $2.99-2.99½; corn was 3-3⅞ cents higher, December $2.36-2.36¼; oats were 1½-1¾ cents higher, December $1.16-1.15⅞ cents, and soybeans 3½-4½ cents higher, November $3.70½. All soybean contracts made new seasonal highs.

No moisture was reported in the dry areas of the Southwest, although light rain or snow was forecast for tonight. The Weather Bureau said a critical condition exists over South-Central Nebraska, Western Kansas, Southeastern Colorado, "and especially in the Northwestern Texas-Western Oklahoma area." Elsewhere in the country Winter wheat condition was good to very good.

Relatively small turnover was partly attributed to doubts concerning the Administration's anti-inflation program. Congress meets Monday but as yet the grain trade has no definite indication of what program, as far as grain prices are concerned, will be presented to the special session.

The Weather Bureau said over one-half of the corn crop has been gathered in Iowa, about one-half in Illinois and approximately one-third in the Ohio-Indiana area.

An Agriculture Department report of a corn crop of 2,447,422,000 bushels, down 11,252,000 bushels from a month ago, came after the market closed and had no influence on prices. The change was not considered large and traders pointed out that this was still a considerable improvement over the low Sept. 1 forecast of 2403,913,000 bushels.

Lard moved upward in line with grains, closing 25 to 55 cents a hundred pounds higher, November $25.15.

Higher Prices and Taxes Seen as 'Cold War' Cost

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

The Marshall Plan is a calculated gamble that relief in Europe will bring prosperity, and free government to the Old World, against the bet that misery unabated will result in Communism on the Continent.

America's stake in the wager will be immediate higher prices, and ultimately higher taxes to pay off an expenditure ranging from 17 to 30 billion dollars.

Controlled prices would be the "sensible thing" to bolster the nation's budgets against violently rising costs, but Dr. Gordon Siefkin, Professor of Economics of Emory University, does not believe controls will again be acceptable to the American people.

The economist's opinions, as listed above, were shared Wednesday with the Atlanta League of Women Voters at the Ansley Hotel, in a lucid, but impersonal and qualified resume of whether America can, or cannot, "afford the Marshall Plan."

"We cannot afford not to afford it," he quipped. "Our Government has decided it is imperative for us to keep the system of Communism from spreading in Europe. We can afford much, provided we feel the end is worth it."

The Marshall Plan, Siefkin explained, has two phases: immediate aid to Europe, which is the short-run program, and the United States' policy to wage cold war against the spread of Communism.

"Of course it will be expensive," he said. "We will actually be carrying on another war, except that our men will not be in Europe to be shot at. Our economy will be strained in exactly the same way it was before the end of hostilities."

Siefkin warned his audience not to expect democracy as we know it to come out of European rehabilitation. "There is not the slightest chance of that," he said. "The basic aim is whether men will be left free to choose their own types of government, or to have their lives arranged for them by small groups of men."

INTERRUPTS TRIAL

'Taxi' Bandit Pleads Guilty On 7 Counts

Jesse Barnett, 20, of 230 Alexander St., who conducted a one-man crime wave on the night of June 28, faced 15 years in prison Wednesday after interrupting his trial to plead guilty to several indictments.

On trial for assault with intent to rape, Barnett pleaded guilty, after Asst. Sol. James Dorsey had presented the State's case, not only to that charge but to four counts of robbery and two counts of assault with intent to murder.

Barnett was arrested after holding up a young woman as she was going home on Berkeley Street. The young woman talked Barnett into walking with her to the vicinity of her home, where her screams attracted the attention of a relative who held Barnett till arrival of police.

Police found that Barnett was wanted for an earlier robbery of Taxi Driver John T. Hnderson and two girls in Henderson's cab. The girls were Evelyn Kersey, of 337 Fourth St., N. W., and Marian Pennell, of 129 Rawson St., S. W. During the holdup Barnett shot Miss Pennell in the foot.

Barnett went on trial before Judge C. J. Perryman, visiting Judge from Thomson.

Five Radios Donated to City Prison

Radio waves will take rays of sunshine and moonlight into the City Prison Farm to lighten the sentences of the 400 persons imprisoned there.

Five portable radios were donated to the farm Wednesday by Walter R. Thomas, who attended a meeting of City Council's Prison Committee and inspected the prison.

Thomas thought a radio for each of the four wings and one for the dining room would help pass the time. His offer was accepted by Councilman Lee Field, Committee Chairman, and Field's colleagues.

H. H. Gibson, Prison Superintendent, also pointed out that the City is one of DeKalb County's largest farmers. The farm is located in DeKalb County.

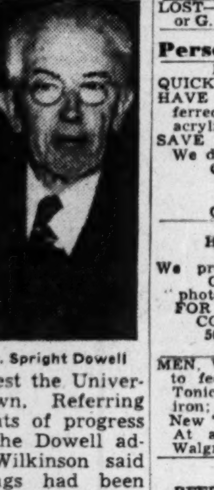
The 300 acres under cultivation will produce commodities valued at $38,000 this year. Cost of operating the farm, including maintenance of the plant, payment of guards, and other expenses, is listed at $180,000 for the year.

Gibson said he expected to produce $50,000 worth of products this year, but blamed the drop on the long Summer drouth. He plans to irrigate a portion of the farmlands, but says he has not yet completed his studies.

The population of the prison averaged 400 daily at the present time, Gibson said.

Alumni Group Lauds Dowell as Mercer Head

Signal honor and tribute were accorded Dr. Spright Dowell, President of Mercer University, at the Ministerial Alumni Association luncheon Wednesday when 216 members of that Association stood in token of their love and esteem in which their beloved "prexy" is held.



Dr. Spright Dowell

Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, of Athens, speaker of the occasion, asserted Dr. Dowell's administration at Mercer to be the greatest the University has ever known. Referring in detail to elements of progress at Mercer during the Dowell administration, Dr. Wilkinson said that more buildings had been erected, more teachers employed, more students enrolled, more endowment secured, and Mercer University established in a larger place in popular esteem.

Dr. Wilkinson stressed the importance of the Roberts School of Christianity, established during the Dowell administration, and asserted it would make a far-reaching contribution toward a religious conviction in the South's social and industrial life in coming years.

Dr. Dowell spoke briefly in response, and said that Mercer's student enrollment today is 250 per cent above that of prewar years.
